A Wall of Water
One Million for Two Fists

—By Arthur Brisbane—

(Copyright, 1927, by Star Co.)

TENS OF THOUSANDS are homeless in Japan, their homes swept away by the typhoon and tidal wave, and thousands are dead. The disaster, as described by eye witnesses, was literally awful.

First came a heavy rumbling sound from the ocean, in the midst of a dreadful windstorm. Then a wall of water, ten feet high, rolled in from the sea, sweeping houses, cattle and men before it, and washing fishing boats up into the rice fields. Airplanes surveying the disaster report great rice areas covered by the sea.

At almost the same time, a tidal wave twenty-five feet high, accompanied, perhaps caused, by a terrific gale, swept the west coast of Mexico. Telegraph and telephone poles and wires are washed away, and no details have been received of this calamity near home. It is conceivable that a great earthquake, at the bottom of the Pacific, may have caused disaster on either side of the ocean.

It was reported in New York today that one million dollars have already been paid to Tunney as an advance on his fight receipts—the idea being to thwart gentlemen anxious to attach his share of the money for alleged claims.

Tunney enlisted in the marines "for a chance to fight," never having done any boxing before he went to France. He little thought that boxing for sport, on Uncle Sam's pay-roll, at $30 a month, would enable him later to make more than a million dollars in a few minutes.

Mayor Walker of New York, who contemplates the Venetian canals and says: "Henry Ford couldn't make a living in this town," is mistaken. Ingenious minds adapt themselves to circumstances. If all our streets had been water Ford would have built fifteen million power boats instead of fifteen million automobiles.

Ford proves his powers of adaptation by suddenly abandoning an automobile of which he has sold 15,000,000 copies, to create an entirely new car, adding 78 per cent. to his River Rouge plant, building new fac-

HELD IN TOOL THEFT AT FOREST HILLS

Charged with larceny of workmen's tools from a Forest Hills store, Frederick Reid of Worcester was held in bail of $2,000 for further investigation when arraigned in Municipal Court today. Patrolman Arthur J. McCarthy of Joy street station arrested Reid after, it is alleged, he tried to dispose of the articles in a Merriman street pawnshop.

Police Hold Isadora Duncan's Body

REFUSE TO RECOGNIZE BROTHER'S CLAIM; FIND SHE HAD SOVIET VISA

Nice, France, Sept. 15 (I.N.S.).—The French police today refused to surrender the body of Isadora Duncan, noted dancer, who was killed in an automobile accident here last night, to the representative of her brother, Raymond, who was en route here from Paris to take charge of funeral arrangements.

The police stated that the dancer was a Russian subject, as was proven, they said, by the finding of a Soviet passport among her belongings. The authorities refused to allow anyone to touch the body, pending the arrival of the Russian Consul from Marseilles.

A coroner's jury, which investigated the tragedy, returned a verdict of "accidental death."

Paris, Sept. 15 (I.N.S.)—The dancing feet that thrilled two continents and the exotic temperament which led them into strange and often tragic paths, are stilled today, for Isadora Duncan is dead. She was killed in an automobile accident as unusual in every way as the life she led.

Miss Duncan's brother, Raymond, is leaving Paris for Nice tonight to bring his sister's body here. It will be taken immediately to Pere La Chaise Cemetery, and there cremated.

There will be no religious ser- Please Turn to Page 4, Column 6.

YOUTHS IDENTIFIED IN AUTO THEFT SHOOTING

First identified out of a police lineup while their alleged victim lay dying at Haymarket Relief Hospital, George "Buttsie" McGrath and Thomas F. Conway, both of Charlestown, were arraigned in Charlestown Court today, charged with auto thefts and with assault with intent to kill.

McGrath, nineteen, living in Lexington street, and Conway, twenty, of Sprague street, are the youths alleged to have shot down Warren E. Golay of Somerville when Golay, observing them in Parker street, Charlestown, in an auto belonging to a friend, started to question them.

According to the police, McGrath, when questioned at police headquarters, admitted the shooting. Later, at Charlestown police station, three men and a woman picked them out of a lineup and identified them as youths seen leaving the scene.

Each youth, according to probation officers' records, is on parole on auto theft charges.

Both of the youths under arrest were captured in the home of Conway's sweetheart, Ethel Martell, titian-haired beauty, at No. 18 Sullivan street, Charlestown.

When McGrath was taken by the police a search of his clothing revealed a letter he had written to the girl absolving her sweetheart, Conway, of all blame in the shooting. It read as follows:

"Dear Ethel—I am going away for a long time. Don't hold this against Tom. He had nothing to do with it. I had to knock a fellow off today in Somerville. BUTTS."

Following their arrest the two youths were subjected to a grilling by superiors of the station and in-

ISADORA FEARED QUICK DEATH

Paris, Sept. 15 (A.P.)—Of late Isadora Duncan had given much of her time to writing memories of her career, from which she hoped great things. She seems to have had a premonition of her death, as, in talking with a correspondent of the Associated Press on Tuesday, she said.

"For the first time I am writing for money; now I am frightened that some quick accident might happen."

EX-CANDIDATE FOR BAY STATE GOVERNORSHIP HELD IN LARCENY CASE

Richard H. Long of Framingham, former candidate for Governor and treasurer of the Bay State Garage & Sales Co., was arrested in the Suffolk Courthouse corridor today on a warrant charging larceny in five counts.

The arrest was made by Police Inspector George Augusta, who held a warrant issued yesterday by Judge Bennett in Municipal Court.

Arraigned immediately after his arrest before Judge James H. Devlin, the former gubernatorial candidate pleaded not guilty to all counts. The case was continued to October 6 and he furnished $4,000 bail.

Long was represented in court by his former campaign manager, Martin Hall of South Framingham.

The warrant charged larceny of a total of $4,100 on dozen dates from the Massachusetts Security Corporation of Milk street.

It is alleged that Long obtained money from the concern "on losses based on false facts."

According to the charge, one count alleges that the Framingham man secured money from the security corporation on a car that he never owned.

Another count alleges that he secured money from the company on the representation that a certain sum had been paid toward the car by the lessor when, as a matter of fact, no money had been paid.

Still another count alleges that he secured money on representation that certain sums had been paid on a car, when the sums that had been paid were smaller than he represented.

THIEVES SEIZED IN RIVER; VICTIM DIES

A spectacular chase of two alleged automobile thieves through Medford early today was marked by pistol shots, a dive into the Mystic by the two suspects, an equally dramatic dive after them by their policeman-pursuer, and was climaxed when the owner of the stolen auto dropped dead.

The automobile owner who dropped dead was Archie Whittemore of No. 29 Newport road, Arlington, and the other actors who figured in the lurid drama of the early morning were Patrolman Thomas F. Duffy of the Medford police, and Robert McCormick and Joseph P. McNally, the two suspects, both Charlestown youths.

Medford police say the two youths made three round trips to Billerica during the night and State police were asked to search for a camp there where, the authorities believe, other stolen cars may be found.

Patrolman Duffy, who was highly lauded by his superiors, was the policeman who nearly captured Herbert Gleason and others in the gang that killed James Monagle, South Medford storekeeper, last year. He reached the scene in time to fire after the fleeing killers. Gleason was later caught and now faces death in the electric chair, having been convicted of first degree murder.

Whittemore's car had been stolen in Somerville, and after he had reported the theft he started for his Arlington home. The Somerville police broadcasted the theft, and Patrolman Duffy was warned at his box on Main street, Medford to be on the lookout for the car.

Hardly had he turned away from his box when he noticed the five apparatus, returned from an alarm.

DOCTOR TRIED IN GIRL 'SURGERY' IS SUICIDE

Northampton, Sept. 15.—Dr. Clarence I. Sparks, who was tried and acquitted on the charge of performing an illegal operation on Miss Jessie Lyman, pretty college secretary, whose death in a local hospital caused a sensation two years ago, committed suicide today by inhaling gas, according to the police.

He was formerly associate medical examiner for the Second Hampshire district but was forced to resign by Governor Fuller after it was learned that Miss Lyman had been a patient at his private hospital until two days before her death.

Shortly after his resignation, Dr. Sparks was arrested and released under $10,000 bail. He was tried in June, 1926, and his defense was that the girl had already undergone the

FINE WEATHER AND WE GO, SAYS MISS ELDER

New York, Sept. 15 (A.P.).—A pretty 23-year-old girl flier who talked laughingly of the adventure in which ten persons have disappeared, today was at the starting point of her projected flight to Paris, eager to be the first woman to cross the Atlantic by air.

Miss Ruth Elder of Lakeland, Fla., swooped down from the sky at Roosevelt Field with her copilot, Captain George Haldeman, after covering 420 miles from Wheeling, W. Va., and immediately began final preparations for taking off on her 3,610 mile flight across the sea Sunday morning.

Tragic Automobile Death ~ Ends Stormy Career ~ Of Isadora Duncan

IN ONE OF HER HAPPY MOMENTS
Isadora Duncan and her husband, Sergei Yessenin, were happily married for many years before the dancer divorced him. He committed suicide in Moscow after she had obtained her decree.

A REAL BEAUTY
This photo of Isadora, taken years ago, reveals the beauty that aided her in attaining the heights of her profession.

HER GREATEST TRAGEDY
Isadora Duncan, shown in this affectionate pose, suffered the greatest tragedy of her life when her two children were drowned when their auto plunged into the River Seine in Paris. (See story on Page 1).

ISADORA AND POET LOVED EACH OTHER DEARLY
The tragic death of the star came soon after she had termed her reported engagement to Robert Winthrop Chanler of New York a "joke." Not so long ago she was saved from drowning at Nice by a young British Army officer. She was said to have tried suicide over the lost love of a Russian.

leave Sunday except the weather," the pretty pilot said. "Gas bought, runway ready, plane dandy, pilots O. K. Give us a weather break and we'll take off th n.

"I've been dreaming and planning this ever since I first learned to fly two years ago. Then Lindbergh did it, and I was more determined. I want to be the first girl to turn the trick. I'll do it with Captain Haldeman."

EYES SPARKLED.

Her auburn-bobbed hair was swept by the wind at the flying field and her large gray eyes sparkled in vivacious confidence as the aviatrix reeled off details on her monoplane, the Stinson-Detroiter American girl.

"She weighs 5,600 pounds loaded, 3,600 empty and will carry about 500 gallons of gas. She'll cruise about 4,800 miles. I figure about 100 miles an hour or a bit better as a cruising speed."

The American girl is driven by a 220-horsepower Wright whirlwind engine, and is a duplicate of the Sir John Carling, which vanished in Atlocean, the round-the-world plane Pride of Detroit and the Royal Windsor, whose transatlantic flight has been abandoned.

Attired in light tan golf knickerbockers, a man's white shirt, tan sport shoes and a flying helmet, which was pulled back over her head, Miss Elder was as dapper and immaculate as Colonel Lindbergh on the day he arrived here with unrolled collar neatly pressed flying togs after his long flight from St. Louis on his way to Paris.

REFUSES CIGARETTES.

In dashes marked by a soft Southern drawl, the young flier answered reporters' questions.

"Never smoke 'em," she said as she refused a cigarette at the start of the interview.

"Do you want only to fly to Paris because you are a girl?" she was asked.

"Well, they've got pretty evening gowns there, I hear," she replied with a mocking smile. "I've never been to Europe—might as well go this way—get some clothes—doll up a little—come back by boat—taking it easy—so flying back for me."

"What will you wear on the flight?"

NOT EVEN ENGAGED.

"What I've got on I suppose, I don't know."

"Are you engaged to Captain Haldeman?"

"Say, listen, I'm married," the co-pilot interrupted.

Miss Elder was asked about a report that she had been married in Arizona.

"Never been in the silly State," she said laughingly. Nope. Never married—not even engaged."

And she shook her head vehemently when it was suggested she might be in love, and she offered no explanation for her application for a passport under the name of "Mrs. Ruth Elder."

Miss Elder was asked if it was true she had been offered a bonus to abandon her flight because of the disasters befalling recent transoceanic expeditions.

"No, but it wouldn't have done any good if I had," she said. "I'm here to fly—quickly."

The aviatrix was born on September 8, 1904, in Anniston, Ala. She now lives with her parents at Lakeland. She has five brothers and three sisters.

operation when she reached his hospital for further treatment.

The jury, after deliberations lasting more than twenty-two hours, found him not guilty. Miss Louise Zember, a nurse, who was tried as an accessory after the fact, was found not guilty by order of Judge Nelson Brown.

Miss Lyman was secretary to a professor at Massachusetts Agricultural College, Amherst. Her clandestine romance was with a married man several years her junior and the father of five children, according to the police.

She was at Dr. sparks' hospital for several days, suddenly taking a turn for the worse and being removed to Dickinson Hospital where she died. On her death bed, she refused to name the man responsible for her condition, but the police learned his identity elsewhere.

She also declared a Holyoke doctor had performed the operation, and this death-bed statement was a big factor in Dr. Sparks' acquittal. When he was freed by the verdict of the jury, Dr. Sparks appeared highly pleased and announced he would resume his practice.

backing into its house on Main street, while at the same time a car was coming down Main street at high speed.

Duffy ran to the front of the fire apparatus, with no thought that the reported car was already looming down upon him, but wishing only to warn the driver of the fire engine.

There were two young men in the car, and the instant they saw the officer they steered the automobile straight for him, Duffy being compelled to leap for his life.

Then the officer sensed that this was the car that he had been warned to look out for, and he commandeered another machine and set out in pursuit.

The fleeing automobile at high speed turned into South street, the pursuing machine gaining slightly, and when the stolen car turned once more at Winthrop street, Duffy was near enough to fire two shots at his quarry, though it did not halt them.

The pursued zoomed over the Winthrop street bridge, opened today, then the pair halted suddenly, leaped from the car, and dove headlong into the Mystic River.

Duffy stood on the bridge and ordered the two at gun-point to swim to him. Instead they turned and began swimming frantically toward the north bank.

Duffy threw down his gun, pulled off his coat, and dove into the river from the bridge.

Meanwhile Sergeant William G. Golden of the Medford police had been appraised of the shooting by frantic householders and he sent a squad of men to the bridge.

They arrived in time to cast off a boat and aid Duffy in bringing in his prisoners.

When the police went to the home of Whittemore to inform him of the recovery of the car they were informed he had dropped dead.

The two men were taken to the Medford station and then to the Somerville station. McCormick said he lived at No. 4 Wallace court, Charlestown, while McNally gave his address as No. 114 High street, Charlestown.

OLD SHELL HOLE MADE TO GIVE UP ITS DEAD

Memory, skill and the big heart of L. H. Redfield, war veteran of the 101st Engineers, have brought together in death and a French cemetery, two soldier brothers killed in action, but separated since 1918.

By his interest in the hunt to the body of one of the two brothers, down somewhere in an unidentified and unmarked grave, Redfield, the Boston engineer, has brought peace to the hearts of the boy's family in Pennsylvania, and acclaim to himself from his fellow Legionnaires in Paris.

Cable dispatches today told tersely the story, but in between the lines was a story of perplexity, of dogged perseverance, of wracked memory and of carefully plotted lines over a terrain now entirely changed on its surface from the ripped and torn sector of years ago.

THINKS BACK 9 YEARS.

Nine years is a long time, but when Redfield, after a few hours in Paris, heard that authorities in America and France had been endeavoring, with no success at all, to locate the body of Robert Watt of Pennsylvania, the name rang familiarly in his recollection and he began to think back.

The engineer was touched by the story, in which the parents of the boy had prayed incessantly that their son's body might be found and that it might be placed in Suresnes Cemetery, where a grave adjoining that of his brother, William, who died in a hospital, had been waiting month in and month out.

BOY FELL IN ACTION.

Redfield had been with Robert Watt in some engagement when the boy fell, he remembered, but the piecing together of incidents into events and consecutive chains of occurrences was a long, slow groping that sometimes left him fatigued, and sometimes angered.

But he persisted in searching through his memory, until, finally, the misty blur cleared a bit, he visualized a rough, torn field and then brought up from some distant brain-cell the picture of a shell hole holding a curing, writhing form.

PICKS OUT THE SPOT.

Redfield, with friends and officials, sought out the field of his memory—only to find a grass and shrub-grown place that was entirely unfamiliar. However, Redfield picked out skyline and other markings and set about locating the old shell hole, long ago filled in.

From one angle of the field he paced in, then checked with pacings from other angles. He endeavored to follow his own path on that fated day long ago and re-enacted his movements.

Finally he pointed out a spot and asked the workmen to dig. The remains of Robert Watt, with identification tags, were uncovered.

BOSTON EVENING AMERICAN

BOSTON, THURSDAY, SEPTEMBER 15, 1927

PARENTS HELD IN 3 POISON DEATHS

Blakely, Ga., Sept. 15 (A.P.)—Mr. and Mrs. Harris Hayes were accused today of having poisoned their daughter-in-law, Mrs. Amos Hayes, sixteen, formerly of Detroit, and were under investigation in connection with the deaths of their sons James and Amos Hayes.

The two were arrested after a coroner's jury had returned a verdict that Mrs. Amos Hayes died ten days ago as a result of poison administered by them.

James Hayes died at his parents' home two months ago. Amos, a resident of Detroit, came home to attend the funeral. He remained for a visit and shortly afterwards became ill and died. Before life death he asked a nurse to tell his parents of a wife and child he had left in Detroit.

The parents sent for their daughter-in-law and granddaughter. Shortly after her arrival, the younger Mrs. Hayes became violently ill and died.

Authorities declare the parents were beneficiaries of large life insurance policies carried by their sons, and named jointly with his wife in Amos' policies.

WORLD FLIERS QUIT IN TEARS

Detroit, Sept. 15 (A.P.)—Two worried wives today were jubilant over the decision of Edward F. Schlee and William S. Brock, to abandon their globe-circling tour at Tokio. "I am overjoyed," said Mrs. Schlee. "It is what I have been hoping and praying for." Mrs. Brock was equally expressive of relief.

Tokio, Sept. 15 (A.P.)—Public opinion and the pleading of loved ones at home brought to an end the round-the-world flight of the monoplane Pride of Detroit here today.

Edward F. Schlee and Walter S. Brock, co-pilots of the craft that set out from Harbor Grace, N. F., on August 27 last to beat the record in circling the earth, feared no danger, having braved storms, heat and erratic tropical winds.

But they were told by aviation authorities and their own agent here, J. V. Walker, that it would be suicidal to attempt to fly across the Pacific Ocean.

Then they began to read scores of cablegrams that had come for them in care of the American Embassy. These contained threats, warnings and supplications against making the Pacific hop.

Among them was one from the Schlee children of Detroit, asking their father to consider them before he tried to fly over the Pacific. He weakened. Brock emerged from a lengthy conference downcast and Schlee emerged in tears and announced the flight was off.

Brock and Schlee will sail from Tokio next Saturday, for San Francisco. The Pride of Detroit will be placed in the hold of the ship. They will fly to their home from San Francisco.

FOUR WOMEN HURT IN BURLINGTON CRASH

Miss Christine Young of No. 73 Broadway, Quincy, was severely cut about the throat when she was hurled through the windshield of an automobile operated by Mrs. Catherine Yeo of Arlington, on Cambridge road, Burlington, which was said to have been crowded off the road by a truck owned by Arthur H. Todd of Wilton, N. H., and driven by Harold F. Whitton of that place.

Miss Young was taken to the Choate Hospital in Woburn. Mrs. Yeo was injured about both knees, and two other women in the car, Miss Margaret Merrill of Somerville and Mrs. W. J. Budwell of Arlington, were cut and bruised.

MUST RETURN RING TO MAN

Judge Elias B. Bishop in the equity session of Superior Court has ordered a final decree in a bill in equity brought by Henry Manosky, a Dorchester avenue grocer, against Ethel Fox of Dorchester. The latter must return to Manosky a $400 diamond ring which he gave her when she became engaged to marry him.

The judge finds that the engagement was broken by Miss Fox with no fault on the part of Manosky. Judge Bishop further finds that Manosky and Miss Fox became engaged on Sept. 5, 1925, after a year's courtship and agreed to marry within a year or two, but that no definite date was set. Not long after the engagement Miss Fox showed signs of lack of appreciation of Manosky, and on Aug. 28, 1926, she told him not to see her any more and refused to see or talk with him.

At the hearing before Judge Bishop both parties said they loved each other and were ready to marry.

COSGRAVE SEES VOTE VICTORY

Dublin, Sept. 15 (I. N. S.)—The voters of the Irish Free State went to the polls today after one of the quietest election campaigns in the history of Ireland.

The fact that every candidate has pledged to take his seat if elected, a situation which has not prevailed for years, makes prognostications as to the outcome of the elections difficult, but it is thought that with the support of he farmers and independents, President Cosgrave should be able to obtain a working majority of from ten to fourteen votes over the other parties.

The results will not be known for several days, because of the proportional representation electoral system.

OLD SHELL HOLE MADE TO GIVE UP ITS DEAD

Memory, skill and the big heart of L. H. Redfield, war veteran of the 101st Engineers, have brought together in death and a French cemetery, two soldier brothers killed in action, but separated since 1918.

By his interest in the hunt to the body of one of the two brothers, down somewhere in an unidentified and unmarked grave, Redfield, the Boston engineer, has brought peace to the hearts of the boy's family in Pennsylvania, and acclaim to himself from his fellow Legionnaires in Paris.

Cable dispatches today told tersely the story, but in between the lines was a story of perplexity, of dogged perseverance, of wracked memory and of carefully plotted lines over a terrain now entirely changed on its surface from the ripped and torn sector of years ago.

THINKS BACK 9 YEARS.

Nine years is a long time, but when Redfield, after a few hours in Paris, heard that authorities in America and France had been endeavoring, with no success at all, to locate the body of Robert Watt of Pennsylvania, the name rang familiarly in his recollection and he began to think back.

The engineer was touched by the story, in which the parents of the boy had prayed incessantly that their son's body might be found and that it might be placed in Suresnes Cemetery, where a grave adjoining that of his brother, William, who died in a hospital, had been waiting month in and month out.

BOY FELL IN ACTION.

Redfield had been with Robert Watt in some engagement when the boy fell, he remembered, but the piecing together of incidents into events and consecutive chains of occurrences was a long, slow groping that sometimes left him fatigued, and sometimes angered.

But he persisted in searching through his memory, until, finally, the misty blur cleared a bit, he visualized a rough, torn field and then brought up from some distant brain-cell the picture of a shell hole holding a curing, writhing form.

PICKS OUT THE SPOT.

Redfield, with friends and officials, sought out the field of his memory—only to find a grass and shrub-grown place that was entirely unfamiliar. However, Redfield picked out skyline and other markings and set about locating the old shell hole, long ago filled in.

From one angle of the field he paced in, then checked with pacings from other angles. He endeavored to follow his own path on that fated day long ago and re-enacted his movements.

Finally he pointed out a spot and asked the workmen to dig. The remains of Robert Watt, with identification tags, were uncovered.

FARM BOARD APPOINTEES OPPOSED BY FLETCHER

Washington, Sept. 14 (A.P.)—Senator Fletcher of Florida, ranking Democrat on the Senate banking committee, authorized a statement today that if the Senate would act upon information that he and his friends were "ready and willing to submit" Eugene Mayer, George R. Cooksey and Floyd R. Harrison would not be confirmed for membership on the Federal Farm Loan Board.

"The decision of the Supreme Court that the President had the power to remove all appointive officers," the statement declared, "gave the men who want to destroy the great agricultural financial agency their opportunity to put in office Eugene Meyer, who is a banker not a broker, and his two associates, none of whom has the slightest knowledge of agricultural needs. If the Senate confirms them it will necessarily approve the injustice done Messrs. (Robert A.) Cooper (Elmer S.) Landis and (Edward E.) Jones."

DRAWS THE VEIL FROM LIFE AND LOVES OF ISADORA DUNCAN

Isadora Duncan, the Greek dancer.

Isadora, who was neither Greek nor danced the dances of the Greeks.

Who and what was she?

Many and highly colored have been the stories that have issued from the obscurity of her comings and goings. Seeming to tear asunder the innermost veils of her privacy, these lurid tales have, however, left of her real daily existence an almost impenetrable mystery.

What of her real loves, her struggles, her unattainable ideals? What of her sensibilities, her tender affections, her unswerving loyalties? What of her invincible standards, her driving ambitions, who have flashed into and out of her life?

What of D'Annunzio, Gordon Craig, Paul Boncour, Carriere, Rodin, Bourdelle, Paris singer, the Duke of Hesse and the other men

What, in short, of Isadora, the Woman.

Tova Toye, a writer on the staff of the Boston American, knew Isadora Duncan intimately over a period of seventeen years. For seven years he directed her professional appearances in Europe and America. In theatres and concert halls, in transcontinental trains and ocean liners, from her sick bed during critical illnesses, Isadora poured out her inmost thoughts to this Boston man, who was at once her friend and business associate.

All the struggles of her early career, her gradual rise to financial security and artistic success; all her hopes, all her theories of art and religion, morality and aesthetics; all her disappointments and sorrows she poured out.

DEPICTS HER REAL SELF.

This story, reaching supreme heights of nobility and falling to sad levels of rude contact with a misunderstanding world, will be told for the benefit of readers of the Boston Evening American.

It will aim to show this most-talked of woman of a century as clearly as it is possible for an observer to depict the complex, high-strung, uncompromising character of a woman whose relentless, untiring spirit has driven men to the highest pinnacles of achievement and to the lowest depths of utter despair and self-ruin.

This amazing human chronicle commences today and will continue from day to day exclusively in the columns of the Boston Evening American.

Now read.

ISADORA DUNCAN, THE WOMAN.
By Fred Toye.

A burly, heavily whiskered deputy sheriff lounged in the lobby of the Plaza Hotel in New York City. He was watching for a woman whose financial entanglements had wove themselves into a legal document that was now in his possession.

His business was to serve that paper, and Isadora Duncan was the woman who was to receive it from his hands; one more item to add to the complication of an existence whose utter simplicity she had always preached.

A hired limousine drew up to the Fifty-ninth street door. The dancer descended, followed by a woman secretary, mounted the steps, passed through the revolving door and advanced across the lobby.

One Glance at Sheriff

At her approach the officer took a step forward. Isadora, whose eyes had been directed to the elevators, glanced quickly at the man who seemed about to accost her. The glance slowly lit upon him and was gone, but its effect was amazing.

Some strange stirring agitated the walrus frame of the man of the law. Awkwardly he stepped backard and permitted the woman to pass. Dazed and wondering, he turned his steps to the office of the creditor whom he was serving.

"I saw her," he said.

"I saw her, and I tell you frankly that I could not serve the summons. One look from those eyes and I was knocked for a goal. Why, man, she's the most fascinating woman I ever saw in all my life."

Such was Isadora Duncan.

Not beautiful. Not flirtatious. Not exuberant. Not gifted in the art of story-telling or smart banter. Unable to give voice to song or to pluck music from stringed instruments. Incapable of tracing the crudest images with pencil or brush. Snatched from school at an early age. Untutored in the dance and the art of professional entertainment.

Without family connections of prominence, or political ingenuity. Bereft of the elements of business acumen and the orderly conduct of her private affairs. Extravagant with money, whether her own or that of others. Careless of debts and unyielding to the whining appeals of unimporting charity seekers. Merciless in her castigation of certain enemies, and ungrateful to her most devoted friends. Lazy. Disorderly. Erratic. Impulsive. Tempestuous. Irreligious. Unconventional in her love affairs. Unscrupulous in professional matters.

YET FASCINATING

And yet:

She fascinated men and women alike, just as in the case of the deputy sheriff. Those deep gray eyes of hers, which seemed so searching, yet so soft and tender, that calm, slow smile which seemed to hold the mysticism of Egypt, made victims of all who came within her atmosphere.

Great writers drew inspiration from her as from a fountain. The great Rodin and the hardly less Carriere spoke of this woman as the greatest influence upon art in 500 years. Gabriel Pierne, Pierre Monteux, Colonne and Damrosch humbly accepted her directions in the matter of conducting orchestral symphonies, which it was her whim to interpret in dance.

The great misunderstood Carriere worshipped her, and his sad widow now at last enjoys a competence because of Isadora's constant battle with the art dealers to turn her way some of the crumbs of her deceased husband's greatness.

READER OF PHILOSOPHY

Philosophy, biography, history, archeology were Isadora's light reading. Into the long hours of the night she read and devoured volumes in the French which she murdered in conversation but which she knew as well as Zola.

More than one statesman has seen himself rise to greatness; kept ever conscious of his powers by her keen prodding of his secret ambitions.

In her professional work, which she never wished to commercialize, she arrived at the most terrific financial successes, only to abandon them for a whim.

Hardly had she arrived at financial independence when she burdened herself with the entire support, education and training of twenty young girls to whom she was to pass on her art and lead to greater heights of accomplishment. Ten years later, the graves of her own two worshipped children, still soft, she took on thirty more infants whose every laugh was a pang to her distressed mother heart.

PURSUED BY KINGS

Pursued by love-mad sovereigns, she remained true to the struggling artist, who was the father of her child, until he ra naway with his stenographer. Careless, finally, of her own virtue, she watched the doings of her girl wards like a Puritan mother. Scoffing all moral laws, she spoke always with the strictest modesty.

Scornful of society and the church, yet she received with the deepest respect in her home a queen and an abb, constant visitors, and unswerving friends of the woman and her art.

Isadora Duncan, through all her trials, in the midst of her most violent excesses, at the pinnacle of her success and in the tragic despair of her uttermost failure, never could get away from the fact that at heart she was a good little American girl.

To be continued tomorrow.

Fanny Brice Is Depending on Fickle Public

Chicago, Sept. 15 (A.P.)—One of the things that seemed to perturb Judge Kerner before granting Fanny Brice's petition to divorce "Nicky" Arnstein was how she intended to support her children without financial help from their father.

"I work," said the Miss Brice.

"What is your business or profession?" the court queried.

Miss Brice, "the funniest woman on earth," seemed taken aback. Finally she said: "Actress."

"How long have you been engaged in this profession?"

"Oh, judge, about 20 years."

"Do you contemplate any trouble getting engagements?"

"Who can tell? The fickle public, you know."

ALLSTON GROCER SUES WIFE FOR DIVORCE

A suit for divorce brought in Probate Court by Claude M. B. Collinson, a grocer of Allston, against his wife, Ethel F. Collinson, now residing in Provincetown, has been assigned for hearing on Oct. 6. Mr. Collinson names Koren C. Small of Sudbury, a lawyer, with an office in Boston.

Mr. and Mrs. Collinson were married on June 23, 1917, at Provincetown, and have four children, Mrs. Collinson's maiden name was Ethel Wiley.

Mr. Collinson has also brought suit in the Superior Court for Suffolk County against Wiley, charging alienation of the affections of Mrs. Collinson.

MALDEN SCOUT SAVES BOY OF 12 FROM RIVER

Instructions he had received as a Boy Scout how to rescue a drowning person and administer first aid stood well by young Patrick Mellov, 15, of No 158 Highland avenue, Malden, when he raced more than a hundred yards to Malden River, dashed through a half-dozen horrified small boys who were helplessly yelling for assistance, and rescued a 12-year-old boy.

The rescued boy is Albert Wright of No. 165 Ferry street, Malden. He lives with his grandmother, Mrs. Mary Wright, and is a sixth grade student at the Cheverus School.

ISADORA'S LIFE FILLED WITH TRAGEDY

vice," Duncan said, "because we belong to no church, and as yet there is no service for those of superior intelligence."

A TRAGIC FAMILY.

The ashes of the dancer will be placed in a vault in Pere La Chaise beside those of Isadora's mother and her two children and their nursemaid.

The world-famous dancer lost her life last night when the fringe of her Spanish shawl caught in the mechanism of one of the front wheels of a motor car in which she was riding along the shore at Nice. She was dragged from the car as the scarf wound about the revolving axle. Her neck was broken as her head hit the running board, and her body was dragged 25 yards before the chauffeur could stop the car.

ENDS TRAGIC CAREER.

The tragedy occurred on the Promenade Des Anglais. Miss Duncan was riding in a car she intended to purchase if the demonstration proved satisfactory. Her death was witnessed by Miss Mary Desca, a newspaper writer and friend of the dancer, who had been aiding Miss Duncan in preparing her memoirs.

The death of Isadora Duncan brought to a close a career rich in triumphs and great loves, but marked by bitter tragedies. Hailed as the greatest contemporary exponent of the art of terpsichore, she lived a life as bizarre as it was romantic. Her two children were killed several years ago when an automobile in which they were riding plunged from a bridge into the Seine River. Her last marriage ended in tragedy when her husband, Serge Yesseinin, a youthful Russian poet, committed suicide.

LED SACCO RADICALS.

Isadora was last seen in Paris during the Sacco-Vanzetti demonstrations, when, attired in a Grecian robe and sandals, she stood on a street corner in Montparnasse and urged radicals to follow her in a display of sentiment against the execution of the two men.

"Hers is a tragic family," Duncan said in discussing his sister's death. "My father was lost in a shipwreck off the Cornish coast. Isadore's children and Isadore herself were killed in stupid accidents.

"I left Isadore last week. She was in better spirits than I ever saw her. She was working hard.

"Perhaps she did foolish things sometimes, but she gave an entirely new movement to the art of the dance. What she did not do herself, she inspired others to do."

Taft, 70, Says World Is Growing Better, Slowly

New York, Sept. 15 (A.P.).—Chief Justice William Howard Taft, who is seventy years old today, in a telephone communication from his Summer home in Murray Bay, Canada, with Martin Green of the New York Evening World, said he believes the world is growing better, but not so rapidly as many people think.

"I am an optimist," said Mr. Taft. "We must be content to keep close steps between our ideals."

The chief justice sent a note of "most grateful appreciation" for the "boundless messages of good will" he had received.

"I am very grateful that my three children and their wives and husbands are with me at Murray Bay for this occasion—and my 10 grandchildren," said the former President.

Mr. Green said that as Mr. Taft talked of his children, "his voice carried pride and as he mentioned his grandchildren he chuckled the wonderful, infectious Taft chuckle which has won him the affectionate regard of all who have ever met him."

CAPTAIN DINGLE'S SISTER DROWNS OFF NANTUCKET

While cruising in a heavy sea, the Gauntlet, Captain Dingle's craft, struck the partly submerged wreck of a boat and the steering gear snapped, swinging the craft around with such suddenness that Miss Manning was thrown into the sea. Her body sank immediately.

FIND NEW CLEW IN NUTTALL MYSTERY

Providence, Sept. 15.—A feeble ray of light today flickered over the mass of contradiction and assertion shrouding the slaying of Gilbert Nuttall in an automobile in West Warwick, while he was with Miss Gertrude Lee of Pontiac, the night of Aug. 12.

Out of the mystery which has baffled State and local police for weeks, two facts were brought forth today which may have considerable bearing on the shooting of the Hope grocery clerk, who died in Rhode Island Hospital a week later.

It was learned that Nuttall cancelled a "date" with another woman on the fatal night, so he might "send things up" with Miss Lee, who has told the police she had expected to marry the young man next June.

BROKE TWO "DATES."

The other important development was discovery of an exploded .22 calibre rim-fire cartridge, still bright and new, at the scene of the shooting in Quaker Lane.

Information regarding Nuttall's two "dates" was given to Harry Smith, his former employer, by a young woman to whom the twenty-six-year-old grocery clerk talked on the day of the shooting.

According to Smith, the girl said Nuttall told her he had engagements with Miss Lee and a married woman, finally deciding to go out with the young Pontiac woman to break off relations with her.

Miss Lee steadfastly maintained that she has told all she knows of the shooting, that she is willing to co-operate in apprehending the murderer and that she planned to be married to Nuttall next June.

The police say Miss Lee has changed in some details her story to them, but refused to give any further information.

SMALL PISTOL USED.

The cartridge was picked up by the young son of Mrs. Anna Morton, who lives at Quaker lane and Warwick avenue.

The boy put the shell into his pocket and forgot about it for several days, when he learned that all such finds should be turned over to the police. Becoming frightened he tossed the shell into a brook, but later told his mother. Mrs. Morton informed the West Warwick police, and the cartridge was recovered.

It has been the theory of investigators that Nuttall was shot with a small calibre pistol. This theory is borne out by the medical examiner's report and the findings of Dr. Daniel S. Harrop, who gave Nuttall first aid.

HILL MAY BE FREED UNDER $100,000 BAIL

Ottawa, Ill., Sept. 15 (A.P.).—Harry Hill, the twenty-two-year-old "beloved son" of his mother's will, held to her $50,000 estate, and with whose murder he is charged, may be free within the next few days under a $100,000 bond.

Young Hill's attorneys were said to be preparing to ask that he either be released on bond or formally arraigned immediately on the charge of murdering his mother, Mrs. Elizabeth Hill. States' Attorney Hansen said the youth's release would not be contested, provided bail was set at $100,000.

PARIS DEMANDS RECIPROCITY IN U. S. TRADE

Paris, Sept. 15 (A.P.).—France asks the United States for reciprocity in the complete sense of the word as theonly acceptable basis for a tariff treaty between the two countries.

In a note replying to American representations concerning the new French tariff schedule, the French foreign office today set forth the French conception of reciprocity as the condition for entering upon fruitful negotiation of a tariff treaty.

Nothing less than the present high rates in force are offered until the American reply to this note shall be received.

FAVORS GERMANY.

When a reply from the United States is received to the effect that the American government is ready to start such deliberations then the French government will substitute for the present scale a modified schedule giving American goods considerably lower rates, but not up to the limit of those granted to countries with which France has commercial treaties, notably Germany.

So far as is known, Germany was not specifically mentioned but that was the effect of this paragraph of the French reply.

The impression in both French and American circles was that the note was simply the first step in opening what are likely to be prolonged treaty negotiations.

SEES LONG PARLAY.

"In the ministry of commerce the feeling apparently was general that such an agreement would not be concluded in less than three or four months.

The note was immediately cabled to Washington by Sheldon Whitehouse, American Charge d'Affaires.

Later the American embassy issued a communique saying:

"The French answer cannot be said completely to meet the situation and the form in which it was presented necessitates further instructions and negotiations which, needless to say will be pushed with the utmost celerity."

WALKER VISITS MOTHER OF NUNGESSER

Paris, Sept. 15 (A.P.).—Mayor James J. Walker, following in the footsteps of Lindbergh and Byrd, paid a fleeting visit to the mother of Charles Nungesser today and assured her of his own sympathy and that of the great city of which he is chief executive.

As a concrete evidence of this sympathy he presented her with a check for $500, the remainder of a fund collected in New York by admirers of her aviator son.

"It is a mark of the esteem and sympathy of the citizens of New York," he said, "and at the same time a tribute in memory of the son for whom you weep."

Greatly moved, Madame Nungesser replied: "You are too good, you Americans."

With a touch of bitterness, she added: "You have come to encourage me, but it is my son I want. But I have still hope he will return and you will understand my sadness when I think it is four months since he disappeared.

"I know that at this very moment he knows you have come to visit me and that it makes him happy."

Madame Nungesser asked a bit timidly, if she might embrace her visitor. The Mayor, as moved as she, bent tenderly over and with tears in his eyes kissed her.

Later Madame Nungesser, with pride in her eyes, showed the Mayor the workroom where her son had planned his great adventure which ended so tragically.

3 U. S. "AIR" SECRETARIES IN SAFETY CONFERENCE

Washington, Sept. 15 (A.P.).—The three "air" secretaries of the government today planned a conference to commence consideration of President Coolidge's suggestion for investigation of transatlantic flying in laid airplanes which has resulted recently in numerous fatalities.

Assistant Secretaries Mechesken, Warner and Davison, in charge of aviation respectively in the Commerce, Navy and War departments had before them a question as to whether legislative regulation would be practicable and presonals by Mr. Coolidge for study of the equipment needs and scientific precautionary methods necessary for planes such as multiple motored engines and two-

MORE MARINES SENT TO PUERTO CABEZAS

Managua, Nicaragua, Sept. 15.—Additional United States marines were sent to Puerto Cabezas from Bluefields for protective purposes. The Standard Fruit & Steamship Company, which has large holdings at Puerto Cabezas, is in fear of attack by groups of malcontents who have concentrated at Waxa, south of Puerto Cabezas and other nearby points, where rough elements have apparently gathered from all parts of Nicaragua.

A group reported to be followers of General Sandino, rebel chieftain, attacked and disarmed the commandant of police at Waxa. It is believed that these malcontents are trying to join Sandino's forces in the interior.

Long JEWELER

The New Square Prong

THE square prong strikes a new note in diamond mounting and is very much the style today. It is suggestive of an emerald cut stone, yet is not so severe. It is used for large and small diamonds alike.

Illustrated are three 18-kt. white gold solitaires with the new square prong. Note especially the distinctive setting of the centre ring.

Boy Pastor Regains Nerve When Mrs. Coolidge Smiles

Superior, Wis., Sept. 15 (A.P.).—The smile of the First Lady of the Land was what helped Rolf Lium, student pastor, to overcome his nervousness as he preached a sermon each Sunday in the Little White Church at Hermosa, with the President and his wife in the congregation.

"Mrs. Coolidge's smile was a great help to me," he said. "No matter how often I preached, when the President came to church, I always had to overcome a slight nervousness and her wonderful smile steadied me."

Lium related that other members of his congregation flipped a coin each Sunday to determine who would usher the President to his seat. The first time the President came to church, Lium was so "flabbergasted" he left out the middle of his sermon, he said.

16 PROMOTIONS OF POLICE IN EFFECT TODAY

New faces will be seen in practically every police division in the city today following the promotions and transfers made by Commissioner Wilson. Three sergeants have been advanced to the positions of lieutenant, while 13 patrolmen are made sergeants.

In point of rank the most important changes are those which bring the rating of lieutenant to Sergeants Thomas S. J. Kavanagh, Thomas F. Connolly and Charles W. Miller. However, more significant to the general public, is the "making" of the 13 new sergeants and the shakeup involving seven other sergeants.

The general orders follow the big shakeup of several months ago when more than 125 officers, all patrolmen, were shifted in a wholesale series of transfers.

The various station houses awaited the orders with a keen interest that amounted almost to wild excitement. The commissioner's choice of promotions has been awaited for months and, while leaks had brought about rumors that one or another might be favored, his real choice was not certain until the general orders were read at roll calls.

While the commissioner was drawing up the final draft of the orders it was announced at City Hall that the veteran Deputy Superintendent Forest F. Hall would be retired. He has passed the retirement age and will leave his desk at headquarters in October. It is not expected that his successor will be filled in the same rank.

The new sergeants and their assignments are: Cornelius F. Leary, who will go to the Joy street station from the Bureau of Criminal Investigation; Leonard E. J. O'Connell, from Fields Corner to City square; Lawrence L. Waitt, from Dudley street to Back Bay traffic; Ferdinand E. Breed, from Mattapan to Hyde Park.

Louis DiSessa, from the East Dedham street station to the Back Bay; Edward J. Keating, from Jamaica Plain to Hanover street; Edward F. O'Neill, from Joy street to Dudley street; James J. Hinchey, from Dudley street to downtown traffic; John Foley, from East Boston to Milk street.

Francis J. Murphy, from Hanover street to Joy street station; John F. J. Maune, from Brighton to Joy street; James T. Sheehan, from Back Bay to East Dedham street; William J. Harrow, from the Bureau of Criminal Investigation to City Point.

BANDITS GET $50,000 HAUL IN BUS HOLDUP

Cleveland, Sept. 15.—Search is on here for three armed bandits who made a rich haul when they held up a Cleveland-Akron bus.

The men apparently knew that there was a jewelry salesman aboard with $40,000 worth of diamonds in his case, for they relieved him of the fortune he carried and then took an additional $10,000 in money and jewelry from the other terrified passengers.

Leonard Heine, the salesman working for the firm of Adler & Heine of New York, was en route to Cleveland after calling on jewelers in Canton Wednesday.

LEAGUE CHEERS HUB-BRED MAN ON OPIUM WIN

Geneva, Switzerland, Sept. 15 (A. P.).—The Boston bred Persian delegate, Col. Daniel W. MacCormack, has won a signal victory for his country to which he was "loaned" to help solve the opium problem.

Finally, the committee put the blame for continuance of the drug evil not upon the countries producing raw opium, but upon these manufacturing morphine, cocaine and heroin.

The American followers of the anti-drug movement, among them Mrs. Hamilton Wright of Washington, D. C., heartily rejoiced over the day's results as tending to prove that the league is determined to do something definite to wipe out the world-wide drug traffic.

207 MUNICIPAL AIRPORTS IN U. S.

Washington, Sept. 15.—There are now 207 municipal airports in the country, according to the statistics of the Department of Commerce, twenty having been opened within the past few days.

The new municipal fields just opened are: Gregg, Calif.; Fort Morgan, Colo.; South Norwalk, Conn.; Pinellas Park, Fla.; Gainsville, Ga.; St. Clair, Mich.; Austin, Minn.; McComb, Miss.; Bridgeport, O.; Kent, O.; Van Wert, O.; Canastota, N. Y.; Orangeburg, S. C.; Brownsville, Tex.; Houston, Tex.; Portland, Vt.; Manassas, Va.; Beloit, Wis.; Reedsburg, Wis.

A suggestion to those using airplanes for travel and amusement that the pilot's license be examined before going aloft was made by William P. MacCracken, Jr., assistant secretary of Commerce for Aeronautics, as a measure to insure safety. Mr. MacCracken declared that all licensed pilots must carry their permits with them at all times and that the department's airplane license must be hung in the cockpit of the machine.

"Under the law," said Mr. MacCracken, "all pilots and aircraft engaged in interstate commerce must be examined and licensed. However, the operator flying wholly within a State is not amenable to such federal regulation other than the mere registration or identification of his plane. He may be employing craft entirely unfit for the carrying of passengers or other work and he may employ pilots who could not pass federal tests. Anyone not engaged in interstate commerce may buy an unfit plane and offer it for hire with any pilot merely upon having an identification number."

SQUIRREL AGAIN WRECKS BROCKTON POWER SERVICE

Brockton, Sept. 15.—Whether or not it's going to become an annual affair, power officials were unable to say, but here is the story they told to subscribers.

A year ago a squirrel climbed a high tension tower at Du Pont circle substation and sat on a connection. The squirrel lost his life in a split second and half the city of Brockton lost its light and power for three minutes. A year later another squirrel climbed the same pole, about the same time, died the same death and Brockton again went dark and stopped for about the same period.

FOUR BOY TRUANTS TAKE A LONG HIKE

Four boys who played truant from the Hadley School of Saugus, had the misfortune to run into Chief of Police Walter Reeves of Swampscott on Monroe street, Lynn.

The chief questioned them and learning that they should be at school brought them to the Lynn police station where he made them wait outside while he transacted some business, then started them on a four-mile walk back to Saugus, with the stipulation that they should not "hitch-hike" on automobiles but hoof it all the way.

JACK HOLT TO STAR IN STORY OF SPAIN

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS

NEW YORK, Sept. 15.—No one ever suspected that Jack Holt would grow tired of Western roles. The old sombrero and chaps, to say nothing of the string of ponies, had become such a symbol of Holt that everyone thought he would continue playing Wild West heroes. After ten years of Western "dramuses" he has signed with Columbia to star in "Tigress," a story laid in Spain.

Holt left Paramount some months ago after ten years as their pet Western hero. Since that time he has been flirting with the various companies. His decision to sign with Columbia is said to have been made after the success of "The Blood Ship," aided by the promise that George Seitz, the same director, would direct "Tigress."

Dorothy Revier, Richard Barthelmess' leading woman in "The Drop Kick" and approved by Dick in no uncertain terms as an actress of ability, will add the feminine color.

Joseph Brandt, head of Columbia pictures in New York, in telling me his story admits that Columbia feels justified since the success of "The Blood Ship" in spending more money. Let us hope Columbia continues being sensible for while all the other producing companies were crying the need of economy Columbia was safe in the knowledge that there was no necessity for retrenching. Their pictures were never costly.

IT doesn't look much to me as if Rene Adoree will get her trip abroad, at least not in October. She has been cast as Ramon Novarro's leading woman in his next Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer picture.

Renee Adoree

I have for the moment forgotten the tentative title but it deals with the romance of modern Europe. Ramon plays the son of a mythological country. Harry Beaumont will direct and work is to be started almost immediately, which means that Miss Adoree cannot possibly be ready to sail for Europe by the first of October.

WINFIELD SHEEHAN, looking like a million dollars, is back from Europe with a thousand and one plans. When isn't Winnie full of plans? Anyway, he tells me that the world premiere of "Sunrise" will be held at the Times Square Theatre October 1. He also tells me his new Washington Theatre will open with "Paid to Love."

But more important is the news that the German quota permits F. W. Murnau to sail for America October 1.

Winnie says Murnau will be here for five years. I do not know whether he will take out citizenship papers or not, but I do know he will do to work immediately on "Four Devils" scheduled as Fox's piece de resistance for 1928.

"POLLY of the Movies," described as the feminine gender of "Merton of the Movies," is being produced by our old friend, I. Chadwick. Haven't heard from him these many days. Mr. Chadwick has chosen Corliss Palmer for the feminine lead in the same type of character that Glenn Hunter made so famous on stage and screen.

Gertrude Short has the next feminine role in importance, and her husband will direct. His name is Percy Pembroke, in case you did not know. I didn't know Gertrude had a husband until my correspondent told me. Miss Palmer is Mrs. Eugene Brewster in private life.

"TRELAWNY OF THE WELLS" is being held for production until Sidney Franklin gets well. He has had to ask for three weeks' leave of absence to regain his strength after a serious illness. When a company holds a picture for that length of time you know a director is valuable.

Irving Thalberg chose Mr. Franklin to direct Norma Shearer in "Trelawny of the Wells," following his work in "Quality Street," Marion Davies' last picture. I ain't going to say anything about this picture until you see it, but if you don't like it then I will know there is no use in making good pictures.

By the by, I understand that Irving and Norma will be married in November. I am glad they are waiting until I get back to Hollywood, because that is one wedding I want to attend.

SPEAKING of this lending business, Fox and Paramount are in favor of it. Richard Arlen, under contract to Paramount, will play opposite Olive Borden in "Come Over to My House." Ever since the recent cut in salaries brought about a storm of protest in Hollywood, the producers have been working hand in hand.

No one knows how long it will last, of course, but now if Adolphe Menjou sees a star on the Fox lot but he thinks will fit into one of his pictures, he sends an S O S and vice versa.

Jobyna Ralston, by the by, is so in love with her husband that she was willing to play just a bit in "Wings" so he near him. These youthful lovers had hoped they would not be separated, but the fortunes of movies are more strenuous than the fortunes of war.

"Come Over to My House" will be directed by Al Green, and Antonio Moreno and Ben Bard have also been signed for parts.

Horse, Frightened by Airplane, Dies From Scare

Hartford, Sept. 15.—Old Dobbin, venerable steed of a local farmer, had inured himself to the steam engine and the automobile in turn, but the airplane proved too much for him. One was driven to earth near the farmer's home and when Dobbin was driven past it he quivered and shook with fear. Later when he reached his barn he died in his stall, scared to death.

NICHOLS URGES DISPLAY OF FLAGS ON SATURDAY

Conspicuous display of the American flag Saturday in commemoration of the 140th anniversary of the signing of the Constitution, is urged by Mayor Nichols. In a proclamation he said:

"I earnestly hope that private organizations and citizens will also cooperate and display the national colors on that day."

FIN. COM. HEAD RAPS LEGION'S CRITICISM

The Finance Commission rises to a point of virtuous indignation.

The city's Finance Commission says that it did not criticize the spending of the city's money for seeing off the American Legion, Paris-bound, for which alleged criticism it was roundly scored by Acting Commander Edward F. Flynn of the Legion.

The Legion head made his charge in a letter to Mayor Nichols.

While Mayor Nichols was expressing his official thanks to Legionnaire Flynn for his attack on the Finance Commission, Chairman Charles L. Carr of the Finance Commission issued a statement to the effect that Mr. Flynn did not know what he was talking about.

"The report of the Finance Commission," Chairman Carr's statement explained, "in no way criticised the spending of city money in connection with the sailing of the Legion for Paris, nor for the decoration of soldiers' graves, nor for any other worthy purpose. It did criticise the abuses that exist and pointed out the steady increase in the cost of public celebrations, calling this year for an appropriation of $57,000."

Mayor Nichols sent the following letter to Acting Commander Flynn: "I beg to acknowledge, with thanks, your letter in commendation of the patriotic ceremony conducted by the city of Boston in honor of the American Legion on the occasion of its second departure for France.

"Timed almost to the moment when the ship sailed, there appeared a report from the Finance Commission severely criticising the city for its expenditures in celebrations of a patriotic character, and stated that true patriotism does not require nourishment.

"The commission alluded to food, drink and entertainment as purposeless and profitless expenditure, but neglected to state that this expenditure was mostly devoted to lunches and ice cream for children on historical occasions as the 17th of March, 19th of April, 17th of June and the 4th of July, and to patriotic exercises appropriate to these great days.

"Again I thank you for writing me and thus giving me the opportunity to say that your letter truly represents the views of the entire community."

38 BODIES STRUNG UP AS WARNING TO MEXICANS

Nogales, Ariz., Sept. 15 (A.P.)—Bodies of 38 bandits reported hanging singly and in groups from limbs of trees and from telegraph poles along the Southern Pacific of Mexico Railway in Nayarit, today stressed the Mexican government's warning "that outlawry doesn't pay."

Dispatches from Guaymas, Sonora, said travelers and trainmen arriving there told of having seen the grim evidence of the government's campaign against the bandits. The bodies were hung along the right of way between the stations of Compostela and Ahuacatlan in the heart of the region where bandits have attacked railway trains with some loss of life.

William P. Blagaer, American Consul at Mazatlan, Sinaloa, telegraphed here that he had been informed by the State Department that "appropriate representation had been made for the protection of the American mines at Cedrara, Nayarit." The mines are American owned.

VOLUNTARY BANKRUPT BOUGHT MUCH JEWELRY

Out of total liabilities of $4,964 listed by Gustaf A. Burlin, a machinist of Worcester in a voluntary bankruptcy petition filed in the Federal Court, $3,458 is owed to Worcester firms for jewelry. According to the petition, Mary E. Reid, of No. 42 Pleasant street, Worcester, is a creditor for $147 for clothes purchased and the Louise Shop, No. 33a Main street, Worcester, has a claim of $131 for the same sort of goods.

Another creditor is the Biltmore Hotel at 42nd street and Lexington avenue, New York, where Burlin owes $131 for hotel bills. Burlin has no assets.

GLEN OR HAWK G. A. R. LEADER

Grand Rapids, Mich., Sept. 15 (A.P.)—Organization politics, temporarily eclipsed by the annual parade of veterans and the "campfire" session yesterday, flared anew on the convention floor today as the first business session of the G. A. R. national encampment opened.

Worn and tired after marching for a mile under a sweltering sun yesterday afternoon, the 1,534 veterans came to the convention hall today to name one of their group for the office of commander-in-chief. Major-General John C. Clem, Washington, D. C., and Elbridge Hawk, Sacramento, Cal., appeared to be the outstanding candidates. Frank Cole, Jersey City, is being mentioned, and John T. Reese of Broken Bow, Neb., is receiving the support of delegates from some of the Middle Western States.

CONTRACT BRIDGE NOW HAS STANDARD RULES

New York, Sept. 15 (A.P.)—Contract bridge has grown up and will henceforth be governed by standard rules.

In the official rules as announced by the Whist Club only the winning final game of a rubber earns a premium, 700 points if a two-game rubber, 500 if a three-game, as against the former allowance of 700 for the first game and 500 for the winning game.

Penalties for undertricks if doubled, when declarer is not vulnerable, are changed from 100 for the first three tricks and 200 for the fourth trick to 100 for the first two tricks and 200 for the third and fourth tricks. The penalty of 400 for subsequent tricks remains the same.

AMERICAN GUNMEN ARE SOUGHT IN LONDON

London, Sept. 15—Scotland Yard's famous flying squad is combing London this week for three American gunmen who recently arrived here. The New York police sent full descriptions and photographs of the men, who are said to have pulled off daring coups in New York, Philadelphia and Chicago and are now suspected of a plan to blow up the Bank of England.

Special detectives have been detailed to watch the principal banks as long as the gang is believed to be in London.

PANIC RULES CRIMEA AS QUAKES CONTINUE

Moscow, Sept. 15—Panic prevails among the population of Crimea following two new earthquake shocks when sixteen were killed, bringing the total Soviet Russian casualties in the recent shocks up to 48.

Hundreds of patients in sanitariums along the Black Sea coast have been moved inland, as further shocks are feared. At Koriea a hospital was wrecked, five patients and one official being killed by falling walls.

PLEADS NOT GUILTY TO SMUGGLING ALIENS

Jose J. Perriera, master of the schooner Matthew S Greer, now at New Bedford, is charged in two indictments by the Federal Grand Jury with conspiracy to smuggle aliens into the United States and with bringing them in. He pleaded not guilty before Judge James A. Lowell, before whom he was arraigned late yesterday afternoon.

CLASSIFIED ADS REVEAL HUMAN INTEREST

Human interest stories relating personal experiences of Boston Evening American and Sunday Advertiser readers with classified ads, are pouring in by mail from Boston, the suburbs and all parts of New England, in competition for the $100 cash prizes offered for the best letters.

A word of caution is necessary: contestants are urged to remember to write on "How I profited by reading an Evening American or Sunday Advertiser classified ad." Many excellent letters thus far received have unfortunately been devoted to telling why the writer likes these newspapers.

Many and varied are the experiences of classified ad. readers, as evidenced by their letters.

BUILDING UP BUSINESS.

A Haverhill man, out of work, answered a classified ad., obtained an agency and instead of tramping the streets seeking employment finds himself building up a profitable business.

A Newburyport man in a similar predicament saw a used car advertisment, borrowed money with which to purchase the car, and, thus equipped, was able to get a paying position as a traveling salesman.

A sick child in Sharon was made happy when his father, spurred by his pleas, looked in the classified section devoted to live stock and obtained a pet for him.

HE HURRIED HOME.

A Fall River man came to Boston on business, to be here two days, and neglected to leave his hotel address at home. In his absence an important business letter arrived. His wife inserted a personal in the Boston Evening American. He saw it within a few hours and the same night hurried home and closed a profitable deal.

Dancing lessons for her daughter were suggested to a Dorchester widow by a classified ad, and the girl now earns enough to help support her mother.

These are but a few examples of men and women saved from debt and unhappiness, started on profitable business careers or otherwise rewarded by reading classified ads. The conditions of the contest are on another page. Read them and enter the competition for the $100 in prizes.

MAN INJURED WHEN CURBING FALLS ON HIM

Redmond McDonald, of No. 16 Moultrie street, Dorchester, while excavating a ditch at DeWitt and Hancock streets, Dorchester, was injured when a piece of curbing 12 by 3 feet fell on his legs.

Bystanders freed the imprisoned man, and he was taken to the City Hospital in a police ambulance, where it was found that although the legs were crushed, no bones were broken.

SEEKS CITIZENS' OPINIONS ON PRIMARIES

The legislative recess committee at the State House wants to hear from Mr. and Mrs. Citizen of Massachusetts before it makes its report for or against the direct primary system now in operation, even though leaders of the Democratic and Republican parties in the state are at one in their denunciation of the system.

The committee hopes that many citizens will write in to make known their preference.

Charles H. McGlue of the Democratic State Committee and Frances Prescott of the Republican State Committee both denounced the present system.

VIEWS ON "SLUSH FUND."

Their pleadings were taken under consideration by Chairman Henry L. Kincaide of Quincy, who is presiding over the hearings being conducted by the legislative recess committee, which is authorized to make recommendations for proposed changes in the election laws by the Legislature during the coming session.

Looking back over 15 years' experience with the current primary system, Chairman Prescott said that it propagates the practice of using slush funds to put into office unworthy candidates whose character and qualifications are unknown to the voters.

McGLUE'S PREFERENCE.

The law regulating the amount of money a candidate may spend on his campaign is evaded, he said, through the appointment of committees over which the Commonwealth has no control. In a convention, he said, the best man is picked by representative delegates elected by the people. This would still leave to the individual aspirant the existing right to get his name on the ballot by securing the necessary number of signatures of registered voters.

Mr. McGlue agreed with his Republican rival, but added that the direct primary system should be retained in the election of members of the Legislature, because these men are known in their home wards.

SENIOR LEAGUE MEETS IN ROXBURY TOMORROW

The first meeting of the season of the Senior League, Young Judaea of Greater Boston, takes place at the Mishkan Tefila Schoolhouse, No. 122 Elm Hill avenue, Roxbury, tomorrow night. Interesting arrangements have been made for this meeting, as it will mark the inauguration of a most intensive program, which will include particularly extensive cultural work.

Among the features of the meeting will be a sketch, "Elmer Gantry in Olom Ha-Boh." Reports pertaining to the proposed activities of the Senior League will be submitted; a special music period will be conducted, and refreshments will be served.

AMES FLIES WEST TO ESCORT HARVARD PLANE

Frederick Lothrop Ames, Jr., of Boston, who last week completed a record cruise of 4,200 miles across the Atlantic and back in a 50-foot schooner, will hop off for Wichita, Kan., in his plane tomorrow and from there escort the new Harvard Flying Club plane back to Boston.

The Harvard plane will be flown by August N. Pabst of Oconomowoc, Wis., and Murray N. Fairbank of Coldspring Harbor, L. I., two students who will use the airplane for transportation back to college. Thomas Sherwin, a Scotchman, who served as cook on the Primrose IV., the transatlantic schooner, will accompany Ames on his return flight to Boston.

REPORTS CAUSED MAINE SHERIFF TO PROSECUTE

Portland, Me., Sept. 15—Reports that influential Washington officials were bringing pressure to bear on Federal enforcement officers in Maine in the event that Fred W. Hopler of New York was prosecuted for his alleged liquor selling activities among wealthy Summer residents at Prouts Neck, Sheriff King F. Graham said, encouraged him to prosecute Hopler in the Superior Court after he had been sentenced by the Federal Court.

An immediate denial of the reports was made by United States District Attorney Frederick R. Dyer, who stated that he knew of no threats or promises of reprisal having been made by anyone in Hopler's behalf at any time.

NEW U. S. SUIT FILED AGAINST DOHENY

Washington, Sept. 15.—Announcement that a new suit had been started by the government against Edward L. Doheny's oil companies, attacking their claim to three strip leases in the eastern end of Naval Oil Reserve Number 1 in California, was made by the Navy Department. The action is based on the contention that operation of these tips might drain naval wells on the reserve. Atlee Pomerene and Owen J. Roberts who prosecuted Fall, securing growing out of the Elk Hills lease to the Doheny interests, have been retained as special assistants to the Attorney-General in the new case.

BETTY ALDEN'S SOCIETY COMMENT

Artist Albert Felix Schmitt of Cambridge Going Overseas

CERTAIN PLEASANT PLANS of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Felix Schmitt of Cambridge foretell delightful prospects. They are going away to live and travel in the Old World; perhaps for the Winter; perhaps for a year. Whatever the length of their stay, their fine old colonial mansion out in Brattle street, with its enormous studio, is to be closed and shuttered while Mr. Schmitt, artist of international scope, seeks new fields to conquer. The Schmitts have friends and admirers in every world capital.

THEY REACH THEIR IMMEDIATE destination, Pau, via the steamship Antonia out of New York early in December, and a stay in Paris for the holidays. A Winter in Pau offers infinite charms. One is its salubrious climate, famed for an utter absence of rain and snow. And there is the delightful social life of the resident smart colony. And there is an unmatched prospect of the Basses Pyrenees stretching before the windows of the Schmitt apartment in the Grand Hotel Gassion.

IN THE FUTURE, FOR SEVERAL years to come, the Schmitts will be in their lovely Cambridge home only for the briefest of midsummer stays, for each Winter will be spent abroad, either in France by Italy, along the Riviera or in Spain.

A PRETTY, GOLDEN HAIRED debutante of the coming season has been delightfully done in oils by Mr. Schmitt. She is Miss Lilias Moriarty, granddaughter of Mrs. Andrews Moriarty, and now spending some time in Newport at the LeRoy avenue establishment of Miss Fanny Foster, her aunt. Miss Moriarty's formal debut is to be accomplished via the tea route, fortified with the more formal dinners and a gay dance. Miss Moriarty was "finished" at Miss May's and the Spence School.

BIG DOINGS ARE JUST AHEAD for the Norfolk Hunt set. Their Fall meet is set for October 15, and this year has a very special attraction added to the others in the way of a brand new United Hunts steeplechase. So a new steeplechase course is being arranged, some few miles over the rolling country about Medfield. It's likely to offer some stiff hazards to mettlesome horses and their daring riders, and fine sport withal. Naturally Henry G. Vaughan and the Norfolk potentates are exceedingly busy these days.

AND NOT ONLY IS THERE the Hunt Meet in prospect, but hunting itself, just as the sun sends his first gleams over the horizon, brings out the Norfolk enthusiasts. Like their far neighbors, the Myopians, grandmeres and grandperes, tiny tots and all the generations in between, take stitchely to the saddle. So it's no unusual spectacle to see nearly a half hundred dashing away up hill and down dale about Medfield these crisp September mornings. In October the hunt meets in the afternoons.

THE NORFOLK MEET precedes the Myopia meet by but a week. So the sporting sets and others who enjoy the spectacle of handsome steeds dashing over pretty countryside will gather in Medfield October 15, and at Willowdale the 22nd.

THE CYCLE OF THE SEASONS brings polo back into the social-sports' scheme once again. Three times a week out at W. Cameron Forbes' farm in Dedham the doughty warriors of the mallet get together for an afternoon's set-to. Perhaps it's not quite as thrilling as the international play, but for both participants and onlookers it provides plenty of sport and amusement. Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays are the days, and five of the clock the hour.

SOCIETY RIDER THROWN IN TOPSFIELD STEEPLECHASE

Topsfield, Sept. 15.—A. E. Edgerly, wealthy society horseman of Medfield, who was thrown yesterday in the society steeplechase that marked the opening of the Topsfield Fair, declared today that he will ride again during the fair, though thousands thought yesterday that he had been killed beneath the hoofs of the following horses.

Edgerly was riding his great gray Pure Rye, and leading the field by a nose on the last lap, when the big horse tripped on the second jump and stumbled over it. Edgerly was hurled over the horse's head and landed heavily on his shoulders on the ground.

With rare presence of mind, the rider rolled himself clear of the thundering hoofs of the following horses and got to his feet without assistance. Although bruised by the fall, he refused any treatment and was congratulated by steeplechase followers on his remarkable escape.

Pure Rye barley touched the ground and was up on his feet and off again, sweeping over the third jump without a rider and vainly attempting to keep up with the leaders. The horse made a complete circle of the course before being halted. Only two horses finished in a field of four, Baron's Court, owned by A. F. Goodwin, barely nosing out Frederick Avery's River Sand. Spear Wound, a prominent entry, ran outside on the first jump.

New Maine Judge

Augusta, Me., Sept. 15.—William F. Jude was nominated by Governor Brewster to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Judge William H. Mitchell of the Newport Municipal Court. Percy A. Hasty declined to serve.

SOUTHERN PACIFIC SEEKS LAKE TAHOE RAILWAY

Washington, Sept. 15—The Southern Pacific railroad sought authority to acquire the Lake Tahoe Railway & Transportation Company's line extending from Truckee to Lake Tahoe, Calif., in an application filed with the Interstate Commerce Commission.

Chokes to Death

Springfield, Sept. 15. — While Jacob Augustowski was eating his supper with his wife and four children tonight at No. 137 Sharot street, a piece of meat became lodged in his larynx. In a few minutes a doctor arrived but he had died of asphyxia.

Let Your Folks Enjoy What Guests Get Here

PEOPLE who visit the Ritz-Carlton in Boston expect to find there the finest of food delights. Half the world has been searched to supply them. A famous French chef prepares them.

Dinner here is an education in the most exquisite cuisine. Women do not soon forget it. Many carry home new ideas.

One feature of every meal there is a delightful coffee. It is always La Touraine, chosen above all others for its matchless flavor and aroma.

So in countless other places noted for the best.

RITZ-CARLTON, Boston

Inns that motorists talk about, tea rooms that cater to wealth. Extra-fare trains, famous restaurants, magnificent country homes. Such places by the hundreds have selected La Touraine.

Their choice of coffee will be your choice when you know it. La Touraine will bring to your home one supreme delight, as fine as any great chef has discovered. Please compare it with any coffee you know and learn why these experts select it. La Touraine Coffee costs no more than many others, so you might as well have the best.

Why they use La Touraine Coffee

Because it holds the top place in New England, the birthplace of fine coffees.

Because experts regard it the supreme result of 237 years of coffee development.

Because the four finest coffees that grow are combined in this blend. Each comes from a different country, each is the pride of a nation. Three of them cost 50% more than ordinary coffees. One is so rare that only 30,000 bags are grown yearly.

Because the blend is exclusive and secret. No other blend resembles it. Experts spent twenty years in perfecting this ideal flavor and aroma.

Because E. J. Buder, the noted coffee expert, personally tests and selects every coffee in this blend. Because La Touraine, despite its supreme quality, costs no more than other high-grade coffees.

RADIO DIALOG

by C. WILLIAM FROOD

EVERY mail to a radio editor is full of advance notices about the coming programs. At great length does each publicity agent describing the life history of each star to be heard over the air. Nothing in the musical and professional education and experience of the artist is overlooked in the agent's write-up.

The National Broadcasting Company sends us a weekly story describing some feature about its broadcasts. Each is a gem of an effort to convey the maximum information about someone or something the company is sponsoring.

If Stomach is Sour

Hereafter instead of soda take a little "Phillips Milk of Magnesia" in water any time for indigestion or sour, acid, gassy stomach, and relief will come instantly.

Better Than Soda

For fifty years genuine "Phillips Milk of Magnesia" has been prescribed by physicians because it overcomes three times as much acid in the stomach as a saturated solution of bicarbonate of soda, leaving the stomach sweet and free from all gases. Besides, it neutralizes acid fermentations in the bowels and gently urges this sour, fermenting waste from the system without purging—it is far more pleasant to take than soda.

Try a 25c Bottle

Insist upon "Phillips." Twenty-five cent and fifty cent bottles, any drugstore. "Milk of Magnesia" has been the U. S. Registered Trade Mark of The Charles H. Phillips Chemical Company and its predecessor Charles H. Phillips since 1875.

GO ENROLLED IN NEW SCHOOL

With sixty pupils enrolled, the new Holy Cross Cathedral High School, erected under the personal supervision of Cardinal O'Connell to the memory of Mrs. Mary Keith and her son, A. Paul Keith, has opened.

The pupils, opening day, attended solemn high mass, celebrated at the Cathedral of the Holy Cross by the Rev. Neil A. Cronin, pastor. He was assisted by the Rev. Richard J. Quinlan, diocesan supervisor of schools, the Rev. William H. Foley and the Rev. Harry M. O'Connor.

DRIVE AGAINST JAY WALKERS

Boy scouts in uniform will be stationed at the busiest traffic corners in the downtown district and along the busiest streets today to pass out tickets to "jay walkers" who violate the traffic rules, inviting them to attend the daily Jay Walkers' Conference, which is being conducted at the Parkman Bandstand on Boston Common every day at noon during the period of the State-wide safety campaign.

The boy scouts will be stationed at such places as Tremont and Boylston streets, Summer and Washington street.

Entertainment is being furnished at the noon meetings on the Common, followed by short talks on safety. Talent from Keith's Theatre will furnish the entertainment at the meeting today.

A large crowd was present at yesterday's meeting, where entertainment was furnished by talent from the Metropolitan Theatre. Singing, dancing and comedy, featured the show. Charlotte Arrens did a comedy skit while the Mascagno Ballet, led by Eva Mascagno, premiere, favored with a dancing sketch. Maury Leaf did a singing and comedy number and Windsor McKay, cartoonist, drew safety sketches.

Between the acts talks were given by Frank McFarland, Captain Theodore White of the New Haven R. R. and Charles S. O'Connor, former Boston school committeeman.

Next Sunday has been designated as Safety Sunday. The Federation of Churches has sent out letters to ministers to aid the campaign with talks on safety.

The campaign is gaining great impetus every day and reports from the various garages, which have been designated as official stations for the free inspection of brakes, lights and the like, have reported that motorists are availing themselves of the opportunity in large numbers. In addition there has been a noticeable increase in caution on the part of both motorists and pedestrians.

GOODWIN SAYS TRUCKS MUST HAVE NEW BRAKES

Truck owners appearing at a hearing before Public Works Commissioner William F. Williams, at the State House to protest against the stringent regulations requiring safe brakes, were told by Registrar of Motor Vehicles Goodwin that, unless old trucks are equipped with modern braking devices, they should be cast into the junk pile.

The Registrar expressed the belief that the trouble with the trucks rests with the manufacturers rather than with the drivers, but contended that the new trucks can stop within the required distance at a given rate of speed, and that the old trucks must be brought up to the standard.

LEG TISSUES REPLACE PART OF MAN'S BRAIN

Baltimore, Sept. 15.—A remarkable surgical operation was accomplished at Johns Hopkins Hospital here when Dr. Walter E. Dandy removed a tumor and a portion of the brain of a patient and then replaced the brain part with flesh from the man's leg.

Ascertaining the location of the growth by means of the symptoms, Dr. Dandy cut a circular piece of the skull about 2½ inches in diameter from above the right ear. He then found the tumor adhered to the dura mater, or outer covering of the brain.

Assigning an assistant to remove from the patient's leg a portion of tissue corresponding roughly in texture to the brain, the surgeon cut away the tumor, together with the attached piece of brain and then grafted on the leg tissue.

He then drilled several small holes in the piece of removed skull, made similar holes in the uncut skull and sewed the bone together.

The operation took about two hours and was viewed by a number of staff and visiting surgeons.

ACCUSE EX-COP OF ARSON

Row Over Bowls Splits Cadets

GIFTS NOT MADE TO OFFICERS

Colonel Deprecates Argument Over Failure to Follow Old Custom

On the question of bowls and seals, the First Corps Cadets is in a turmoil. All because nine officers, recently transferred out of the Corps, did not receive the usual courtesy of being presented with a bowl bearing the Corps' seal, the customary token given to retiring officers.

Discovery that the nine ex-officers did not get their bowls came to light at the first meeting of the season of the Corps, held at the armory on Columbus avenue.

In reply to questions by two Sergeants, Lieutenant Colonel Horace G. Landon, commanding officer, said that "many other officers have left the Corps without getting the bowls."

A few months ago nine commissioned officers severed connection with the Corps for reasons that were never fully explained. Rumors of dissension were heard

Sergeants Reginald Ward and Herbert F. Burrill precipitated the bowl question when they asked if the "usual courtesies" had been extended the retiring nine officers. Colonel Landon replied in the negative, adding that the cases were not unusual.

"These bowls and seals cost $13 each and I did not feel that I should ask the new officers to contribute money to buy them," he said.

GIRL CAPTURES GEM ROBBERS

New York, Sept. 15 (A.P.).—The capture of two young men who had chloroformed and robbed her of $1,800 in cash and jewelry in an upper Broadway Hotel Saturday was credited by police today to Miss Cordie Harvey, 25, said to be the daughter of a wealthy coal operator of Rhodell, W. Va.

Going without sleep for almost three days, the girl disguised herself and picked out one youth in Pennsylvania Terminal, and another on a street corner in "Hell's Kitchen."

Edward Kelly, 22, and Paul Jeffries, 23, both waiters were accused of imbibing the girl, in New York on a vacation, to visit a room in the Hotel Martinique to meet a fictitious cousin who would assist in making her stay in the city pleasant.

She is a remarkable woman," said investigating detectives. "She described the men in minute detail even to the stripes on their socks, and, one of the men—Kelly—to a defect in his teeth."

Police said she visited alone a Broadway restaurant where she had seen one of the men before the robbery, and on the pretense that she was his sweetheart, secured from a waiter the address of a Tenderloin speakeasy where clues to the identity of the youths were obtained.

During the recent trip East of Miss Costello, Regan renewed his attentions and followed her West on her return to Hollywood three weeks ago. The announcement said Miss Costello plans to continue screen work.

A Real Drama of Intrigue in Boston Theatrical Life After Curtain

WHAT HAS HAPPENED SO FAR

Becky McCloskey, young, good-looking, trying to make her way alone in Boston, finds herself without a position on New Year's Eve. Dan Scarlett, who lives by his wits, sees her huddled in a doorway and persuades her to go to dinner with him. He kisses her. She slaps his face and threatens to brain him with a bottle. Becky sings a little song for him. Scarlett realizes that she has a beautiful voice and makes a bargain to finance her until she gets started if she will let him share her profits. Becky hopes to meet a man she has seen making purchases in the store where she worked.

(NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY)

CHAPTER 4

THE great moment was at hand. Becky was to have her chance—chance at a job, at food and warmth, and—fame. A note had come from Scarlett asking her to be at the S—— Theatre at 11 o'clock for a tryout. She would sing, she would be heard. And of one thing Becky had no doubt, once they had heard her voice, crude and untrained though it was, the rest would come of itself.

And still she sat in the middle of her dingy bedroom, her face buried in her arms, weeping as though her heart would break. Hunger? No, it was not that, one could sing well enough when one was hungry. And one could sing when one was cold, and even dance.

But what one could not do, conceivably was go out for a tryout when one had a single pair of shoes, with only a single heel between them.

There it was—a broken heel—broken at the very base, and not a penny to spend on a shoe maker. Becky, holding the offending pump in her lap, sobbed loudly and uncontrollably.

"What's the row about? Break your collar bone or are you in training for the bank fence symphony?"

Becky raised a tear-stained face, and saw standing in the doorway the occupant of the fourth floor front, Flora Schmidt—big, blonde, good natured, and of uncertain years.

Becky with a singular grimace which she could not control, held up the useless slipper.

"That's what," she said, stifling sobs. "A date with a manager for a tryout, and only one good shoe. Ain't it a crime?"

"Could be worse, dearie," said Flora, consolingly. "There's still shoemakers in town."

Becky began to sob with renewed vigor, whereupon Flora made the understanding gesture of turning the pockets of her dressing gown inside out.

"Stony," gurgled Becky.

"Well, cheer up. I can fix it. I got acres of glue, dearie, and I'm here to tell you that bigger things than heels have been mended with glue. I won't say it's as good as a new heel, but I will say it's better'n nothing."

"Oh, Flora, you darling. You've saved the day. It means everything, everything. I'm to sing for him—the occupant of the fourth floor front, Flora Schmidt—big, blonde, good natured, and of uncertain years.

Why ?

A reliable authority on motor fuels has made the statement that he prefers the regular grade of Jenney Gasoline to the premium motor fuels being offered at an advance in price per gallon.

JENNEY GASOLINE

The regular grade of Jenney Gasoline is particularly adapted to the efficient operation of the modern automobile engine. Why change?

JENNEY GASOLINE

From the flash of the spark to the end of every piston-stroke, Jenney Gasoline delivers a steady thrust of even power, without the coughing and choking caused by some fuels—and coughing and choking react on your motor just the same as on the human system.

JENNEY GASOLINE

Your engine will respond without knocking or balking when you desire more speed or put it to a hard pull.

JENNEY GASOLINE

A certain amount of carbon is unavoidable, since all gasoline is made up of hydrocarbons — but Jenney Gasoline vaporizes and burns quickly and cleanly, forming a minimum of carbon.

JENNEY GASOLINE

Why experiment with your motor? The standards set by the Jenney Company are such that you are certain of dependable quality in Jenney Gasoline—always. Their experts are constantly experimenting with the best developments in motor fuels, and when any improvements are made you can depend upon Jenney having them for you.

DUCE'S GUARDS KEEP HIM OFF DOOMED TRAIN

Rome, Sept. 15.—Within the last twenty-four hours two attacks on Fascism within Italy have been foiled, although one attack outside of the country apparently succeeded. One attempt failed through the vigilance of Mussolini's secret service, and the heroism of an intended victim spoiled the other.

The Rome-Milan express was mysteriously derailed near Bologna. It was commonly believed that Mussolini was taking the train but at the last minute no announcement was given.

The second attack occurred when two chiefs of the Fascist party, Ilsevena Ettore Mury and Renso Morici, dropped to the street wounded by the fire of Masserali Leopoldo, who later was identified as a violent anti-Fascist.

Morici returned the fire and killed the would-be assassin.

As soon as news of the attack reached Premier Mussolini, he telegraphed his condolences, saying: "Blood thus spilled renders sacred the cause of the revolution."

What is believed to have been a third anti-Fascist outbreak succeeded when an Italian assassinated Count Sarzini, Italian Vice-Consul at Paris.

2 FAMILY BRIGHTON HOUSE SWEPT BY YFIRE

Two families found their moving day postponed today when fire visited a two-story wooden dwelling at No. 73 Wexford street, Brighton, and caused damage estimated at $500. The fire is believed to have been caused by workmen who completed their labors yesterday of getting the house in readiness for its new occupants who painted it over in today. The property is owned by the Brighton Abbatoir Company.

FANNY BRICE IS GIVEN DIVORCE, NO ALIMONY

Chicago, Sept. 15.—Fanny Brice got her divorce from Jules "Nicky Arnstein, gambler, confidence man de Luxe.

No alimony was asked. Fanny thinks she can get along without Nicky's support and that Nicky is too much of a gentleman to be asked for it.

Fanny gets the custody of the two little children both to the union.

It was all very simple. Fanny filed her suit on Monday through her attorney, Benjamin H. Ehrlich. She became in getting ready and so she appeared in Judge Otto Kerner's court and told her side of the story.

"When we arrived," she said "I found him in a room with another woman. She was in a combination. . . ."

"You mean a step-in," prompted her attorney.

"And there were bottles all around" she continued. "Neither of us said a word."

She said she had nothing to do with Nicky getting into that predicament, when questioned by Judge Kerner. He evidently was of the opinion that there might have been collusion.

Nicky was not present. He has departed for the Pacific coast, 'twas rumored, preferring not to embarrass his wife by Combatting her suit for freedom.

"He has an inferiority complex," Fanny told the justice. "And he is no longer 'my man' but 'their man.' That meant, of course, that other women were claiming him and that he was no longer hers exclusively. Which, Fanny does demand. And unfaithfulness is grounds for divorce in Illinois.

REDS IN PARIS WON'T TROUBLE LEGION

Paris, Sept. 15 (A.P.).—American Legionnaires are fast becoming familiar objects on Paris streets. Every day more arrive in preparation for the Legion convention which opens next week.

Not only in Paris are they to be seen. Some are on pilgrimages to Belleau Wood and other battle scenes within easy reach of the capital.

Legion headquarters and the Knights of Columbus hut are beginning to fill up and the attendants are having all they can do to supply the wants of the visitors.

It is not likely that the convention will be troubled by the Communists. They have been invited to demonstrate Monday at the suburb of Clichy on the occasion of the inauguration of a square the name of which has been changed to Sacco-Vanzetti place by the Communist city council.

This demonstration will be held, a Communist circular says, "at the time when the guests of the American Legion are parading through the rich deserted quarters under the protection of uniformed police and amidst the plaudits of police in plain clothes."

Many of the legionnaires have found prices in Paris unexpectedly high, and numerous $ O S messages have been sent home within the last few days for money. Some have found the funds they thought ample for two weeks in Paris have vanished in less than a week.

One legionnaire who arrived with $1,000 is returning Saturday, unable to stay for the convention.

'GOLDEN WEST' TUNEFUL HIT AT MAJESTIC

By NICHOLAS YOUNG.

IN these fruitful days of dashing operetta there should be every prospect of glittering magic in the tuneful touch of Sigmund Romberg upon an Augustus Thomas story. It was this union of the arts which brought "My Golden West" to the Majestic for a single week. Herein operetta abounds in the rough frontier days of Arizona of the late Sixties, drawn from the stirring melodrama, "Arizona," and now set to music for a newer generation.

Your fathers and mothers and aunts will remember "Arizona," probably the big broadway hit of its day and age. With the original script and made a good job of it, and Harry B. Smith, the theatre's most prolific creator of lyrics, piled his trade with infinite finesse. Mr. Romberg's catching composition completed the job.

The colorful Arizona of days when the Indians were still bad and unholy Mexicans prowled the southwestern deserts furnished the background for both story and song and, for the most part, the singers had the best of it. A lusty male chorus trolled patriotically from the rise of the curtain to its fall, and as these things go in the modern built-to-order operetta neither the composer nor audience had any cause for regret.

Romberg melodies filled the air, while dancing and, of course, beautiful senoritas brought forth nimble toes and ratsy voices. In its ensembles "My Golden West" joined rank with such excellent productions as "Rose Marie" and "The Student Prince."

Individually John Barker, Joseph MacCauley and John Rutherford gave masculine quality to important singing parts, while Berna Deane, Jane Egbert and Lora Sanderson moved quantity and in good voice through the picturesque scenes of the play.

A more than ample production was set up for "My Golden West," though the costuming would have been more in accord with the book if the comedy army doctor, in rank a captain at the best, and another junior officer had not been clothed in imposing double breasted dress coats designed especially for major generals. For the rest, however, Mr. Romberg has wrought an alluring score and the chorus have provided an estimable singing organization. A rousing story and an impressive score give "My Golden West" items of endurance and popularity that should hold any playgoer to strict attention and keen judgment.

DEDHAM MEN FINED $50 EACH IN QUINCY

Alvin W. Volk of Granite street, Dedham, and Emil Carlson of Riverview street, Dedham, were each fined $50 in court here by Judge Nash on a charge of impersonating other persons while trying to obtain a license to operate an automobile.

William McConnell, in charge of the registry bureau here, detected the variance and had the men summoned into court. The testimony showed that Carlson wanted a license and that Volk took the examination for him, giving Carlson's name.

Organized money, which usually gets what it wants, doesn't want war, a cheerful fact.

Pirates Look Good Should Cop Flag Braves Disappoint

Harvard Woe Eddie Moore Unlucky Victim of Disposition

By NICK FLATLEY

PITTSBURGH LOOKS LIKE NEXT N. L. CHAMP

PITTSBURGH seems to be headed toward glory in the National League race. The Pirates are now four games in front of the Giants and Cards, and that's quite a margin at this stage of the struggle. The Braves were the hope of the other contenders. They figured to win at least a couple of games in Pittsburgh, but the team from this sector has evidently given up the ghost.

Nick Flatley

The Corsairs have gained two full games, while the New York and St. Louis teams have been cutting each other's throats. Donie Bush has had his team running wild for a solid month, and the impetus of that surge should carry it through. Something may happen, of course, to spill things around, but it's the longest kind of a shot, even for baseball, where miracles appear more or less frequently.

The Giants have three days in Pittsburgh, and they can make themselves champs by sweeping through the entire series. That does not seem likely. With Kremer back, better than ever, and the gang smacking the ball, Pittsburgh is sitting pretty at the present writing.

Those Pirates are the best team in the league in the matter of class and natural ability, one of the best teams of a decade. They have recovered from the internal trouble that nearly wrecked them and can be figured to carry on right to the wire. The Cards, as well as the Giants, still have the mathematical opportunity, but we wouldn't bet more than a postage stamp against a million on either.

In the last month of wild racing, the Pirates have been showing the way, although the Giants were gaining until the present series started. Here's how the contenders have progressed since August 14, when Chicago was apparently galloping away with the race:

	Won	Lost	P.C.
Pittsburgh	20	6	.714
New York	17	7	.708
St. Louis	18	10	.643
Chicago	10	21	.323

The Braves may upset the dope this afternoon, but unless they do it looks as if the Yankees might as well start studying Pirate weaknesses for series use. And there are mighty few weaknesses apparent in that outfit.

TEX RICKARD MIGHT SELL SEATS IN ROWBOATS OUT ON THE LAKE. THE CUSTOMERS WOULD SEE AS MUCH AS THE BIRDS AT THE "RINGSIDE."

WALTER MAHAN, who does such things occasionally, submits the following:

Said the Faculty Head to the red-eyed Coach,
"One question, merely, I would broach,
I see you searching everywhere,
And in your eye a gleamy stare.
You're looking pecked, what I mean,
What is it seekest thou, Horween?"

The Head Coach plucked out hanks of hair,
And charted loud in his despair:
"I care not if he chews terbacker,
Of if he here be or slacker,
Of if his color's white or black or
If he's Eskimo or Cracker,
I seek, Professo Pennypacker,
I seek a Harvard quarterb ker

EDDIE MOORE VICTIM OF HIS DISPOSITION

EDDIE MOORE of the Braves is just a victim of disposition, and not any deep, dark plotter. Eddie hates the Pittsburgh Pirates as much as Benny anybody else always figured he had a raw deal in that Pittsburgh mixup, and took great pleasure beating his old club.

But he is a moody individual, given to fits of discouragement and sullenness. If it were not for that he would be a star ball player, because he has all the natural qualifications. He is an unfortunate bird, and probably will be right through his career. Nature is one of the things that miracle men and mere managers cannot change.

Night Training Enables Dempsey To Get Used To Seeing Stars

BOXING SOCIETY BREAKS

Flynn Frowns on Tunney's Social Aspirations; Orders Men on Fork Strike

By GENE FOWLER

Chicago, Sept. 15.—Leo P. Flynn, manager of Jack Dempsey, today made the grave charge that Gene Tunney is a social climber. Flynn is so mad at the Tunney set, which is now gracing the Cedar Crest colony at Lake Villa, Ill., that he has ordered his men to go on a fork strike.

A fork strike is one in which athletes resort to tips at eating with the knife. In society it is regarded as the unkindest cut of all.

Flynn declares that the Tunney people, who, of course, would define "climber" as "aspirant to the finer things," are responsible for the sinister rumors to the effect that Dempsey and Flynn are on the outs.

In reply to these flings the pugilistic pilot says: "It is all against Tunney, not in the form of his social aspirations, but in such that they are out to run me."

Hoff is a member of the Cedar Lake colony, and Hoff-Hoke is not exactly in the good graces of at least one of the Tunney boys, and we don't mean Mrs. Tunney.

Hoff is a light heavy and pugilistic student. He has engaged that Jack pound ex-champion Tunney and his latest manager, Will the Wise Hoke-Hoke, before the last Tunney-Dempsey go.

HOFF GETS HUFFY.

In return Hoff was quoted as president of Tunney's fan club, without doubt of Mike he wants to be such. Tunney, confronted with the current battle of words, replied:

"Don't fall for that poor Hoff thou attitude of the Tunney boys. You can bet your life Hoff is after them and so are a lot of others. Why they will have more to say against Tunney than there are in all New York city's garment trade zone.

"Tunney and Gibbons are seen in society because they are invited. Tunney is friendly with the owners of local gymnasiums, and that is why he is seen in company with Hoff. I do not admit there was a ringside feeling at Soldier Field. What was that to do with Jack Dempsey? Ask those society folks that question.

"Their comeback is that they were flat in funds—a condition that so often besets followers of the fistic art. And they'll do anything to get a chance to throw money. Well, why didn't they get it from Rockefeller, Tex Guinan or Hoff for a bout.

"He is the one who is responsible for the game when fighters get money. They could have got Jack Dempsey Howard if they had needed it. They didn't have to take it from Hoff or any other outsider.

"Particularly as they knew they had at least $700,000 coming to them from their end of the Dempsey fight.

Mr. Flynn gesticulated wildly and then down the bar with a stein. Then he continued: "Why, I'm getting fed up. I'm hardened for punches, I suppose, but with this.

"Now we will have Hoff promoted for a monument at Twenty Grand. Well, he deserves to see that Tunney would get more than the whole federal league of Philadelphia. What I want to know was why did Tunney or Gibbons need any help? Dempsey landed down with cares and sick and poorly trained, had enough sense to know without going into any fight with two strikes on him."

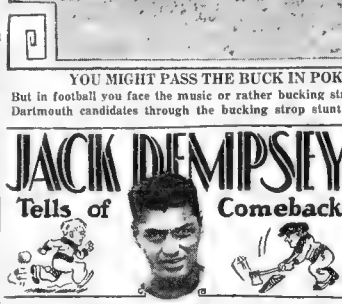
JACK DEMPSEY Tells of Comeback



(Copyright, 1927, King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

CHICAGO, Ill., Sept. 15.—Gene Tunney taught me plenty of things in Philadelphia and one of them is that he jabs with the force and the crushing power that most men can generate only in hooks or straight right hand drives.

Tunney's jab is a different thing than that of any man in the game today, a greater and more effective weapon than perhaps any other man in ring history ever made out of a straight left.

I met a lot of people who had me figured that Tunney was going to outbox me. They just that. They looked sharp left hands at me with the idea of throwing me off balance or of having my attack. There never was anything in the jabs; no force, no hurt. They used their lefts merely to flick at me—not to hurt.

And I assumed that because they jabbed in that way, and that there was no menace in these jabs that Tunney was about the same thing. I intended no great—that I was wrong about Tunney. But I did not know the full extent of it until something from Tunney. About 60 other fellows have gone up against him, without four of that left jab—and they all come off second best in the fight.

The way Gene Tunney seems to have mixed onto the motion that if he could jab with terrific force it would mean that half the battle would be won then and there, and he must have made up his mind to put it into practise one night. And how he has perfected it!

PRACTICALLY every fighter in the world, even those who may have respect for a left jab, has no fear of it. He will avoid it if he can, but, if he can't he will take the jabs as they come, figuring they'll not do him any harm.

I thought that way when I stepped into Tunney. I knew he was a jabber, but thought he was the same as all the others. He jabbed me—and bang—back went my head. He jabbed again and again and every time he nailed me with that left hand he shook my head, or rattled my teeth or cut my face.

It took me a few rounds to get wise to the fact that he was not just using a jab different than any I had ever seen. He was using a jab that was a force in itself, and one that packed terrific power behind it, here was a jab that a fighter must respect with the same sort of caution he would a sock punch right coming at a crashing left hook.

Risko Wins Over Delaney

Cleveland, Sept. 15. (INS)—For making the fighting to good the entire ten rounds, Johnny Risko, Cleveland, won the decision over Jack Delaney, Bridgeport, in a fast and furious battle at the Cleveland Arena here last night.

Delaney took the offensive from the first gong and was the aggressor throughout the fight. Risko was content to stand off and wait for openings to counter with his right hand. Delaney was cut over the left eye in the fifth round and Risko's left eye was closed in the seventh.

Revere High Can Put on Grid Dog This Fall

By JOE CASHMAN.

Revere High is stepping out on the gridiron this year. The Beach City eleven has resigned from the North Shore league and is going on its own, hoping to at least become a success financially, something it never accomplished when a member of the circuit.

Coach Bob O'Keefe has a squad of sixty men working out daily in preparation for a strenuous schedule of nine games, starting Sept. 24 at Waltham.

And how those boys are working! Immediately after school they rush to Bodreard Park where they are kept on the go until darkness makes further play impossible.

The team will open the season under a great handicap, as Pete Jordan, captain and star center, recently had his appendix removed and will probably not be able to play this season, although he expects to get into the final game against Winthrop on Thanksgiving Day.

There are several veterans available, however, and Coach O'Keefe has high hopes of turning out a formidable grid machine.

He is well supplied with this material and if Jordan was able to play, he would have little worrying to do about his forward wall.

Jereal Pavy, Henry Booner and Jimmy Crivello, all veterans, are fighting for the two guard positions and Joe Gallant, a star for the past two years and one of the best schoolboy linemen in Greater Boston, is back for his final year. The ends will be held down by a pair of veterans, Sidney Kaplan and Patsy Sinatos.

These two lads tip the beam at just 125 and 126 pounds respectively but both are considered better than the average as wings.

Most of the months' training he spent in developing a back-rider. He has but one veteran, Chet Kezar, a quarterback. Kezar is a triple threat and building around him, O'Keefe shouldn't be very difficult.

For years Revere High has been the Braves of school football, rarely in the pennant fight themselves, the Beach City lads have repeatedly been stumbling blocks to the best teams in the North Shore League in the closing days of campaigns.

Out of the league this year, they will raise havoc if they battle their opponents as energetically as they fought the two guard positions.

MR. BOSTON By Jack Conway

"I WAS walking along Summer street the other day," said Mr. Boston, "thinking of the time when the Arch Inn, Levy's, Driscoll's and the other restful places were at the height of their glory, when I heard somebody call out: 'Hello, there, Mr. Boston.'

I turned around and greeted Doc Casey, one of the best of our noble band of trainers.

"Of course you know Jack," said Casey.

"After I got through mixing the doctor and Jack Delaney, the great French Canuck fighter, we started talking shop.

"I am on my way to Cleveland to fight Risko," said Delaney. "I have been training at Lake Placid, N. H., and now weigh 191 pounds. I'd give $100,000 to anybody who could build me up so that I'd scale 190 pounds.

"I notice in the papers Mahoney is coming back to the fistic wars. I would like to see him take a few more of 'em. We could then go in at the Garden and stage a comeback.

"Mahoney had more than half a million dollars when he beat me but Walker, if I had tipped Jimmy over, and then got by Sharkey, I don't think I would have had any trouble beating Dempsey. I would look better fighting Tunney for the title.

"There's no denying that from the first time I laid the pole at the mug I fought Mahoney, I've suffered my share of gashes, and, Al, I am another candidate at Mahoney.

"I ASKED Delaney what he thought of Mahoney as a puncher.

"Make no mistake, Jimmy can hit," replied Delaney. "He hit me with a right hander in the fifth round which dented a couple of ribs. Mahoney's only weakness seems to be in his jaw. I believe if he didn't hold his jaw so high and bring it on his chest that he would do better.

"When Mahoney fought me he kept his jaw concealed behind his left shoulder and I found it a tough assignment.

"I am a Mahoney admirer and I'm looking forward to the time when I can step into the ring with him. I know where he is going to fight. I am ready to step in with him at any time. I have been training for the welterweight limit, which is six feet one inch tall. He will be a big old fashioned welterweight. I'm not any heavyweight in the sense. As I am now weighing but 26 pounds, as dangerous, especially as me as quick a counter.

"I ASKED Jack to give me the low down on Paulino whom he defeated on a foul in New York last month.

"The Spic is a cooch," said Delaney. "He keeps his arms and elbows in front of his face and body all of the time. Its hard to get a clean set at him with it running to the rear of boxing a hand.

"Well, I suppose I'll see you out in Chicago," said Delaney in parting.

"See you. I told you I'd be on my way Thursday along with Nick Flatley and Jack Conway. They have an extra bunk in their drawing room for me. All I ask of them is that they bring along a little liquid nourishment. One must get frightfully parched on one of those long train rides."

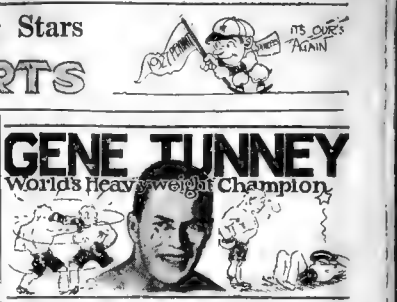
GENE TUNNEY World's Heavyweight Champion



(Copyright, 1927, King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

Lake Villa, Ill., Sept. 15.—If I listened to all my critics I would show everything I intend to use against Jack Dempsey weeks before I enter the ring against him.

Although the reports of my exhibitions during my training period have been flattering, and the newspaper boys all seem to think I have improved mightily, they really haven't seen anything yet.

For me to [illegible] during my sparring sessions and open up, and [illegible] would merely permit my opponent to observe the entire plan of campaign and style of fighting I have mapped up for the coming fight, not to mention the fact necessity would [illegible] in return, as a precaution.

Bacon Delicious and a Body Builder

By MARTHA LEE

A YOUNG man of my acquaintance who just recently hailed from the wide open Western spaces confided to me that he had never heard an alarm clock until he came East.

"Ever since," he told me, "I've been riding the ranges, the only sound needed to wake me up more'n a jiffy was bacon sizzling in the pan."

Can you picture it? Sun just crawling over the foothills, cattle grazing peacefully at a distance, camp cook crouched over the morning fire and the tantalizing smell of crisp bacon perfuming the atmosphere. Seems to me I wouldn't need any alarm clock either if I had such a pleasant awakening each morning.

The nice thing about bacon is it is just as much at home in your kitchen as it is on the cattle ranges. It puts on no airs and makes no pretentions, but neither is it out of place on your dainty alcove kitchenette.

To relish good bacon seems almost instinctive. But bacon does more than delight appetites. It is a real body builder. Next to butter, bacon is the most digestible form of food fat known.

Ninety-seven per cent. of bacon fat is assimilated by the human body.

Growing children should be given bacon. Bacon prevents the let-down of physical and mental energy and the desire for sweets of poorly fed children, because much of its digestion is done in the stomach. Bacon also sends a steady influx of energy into the blood stream over a period of hours, to meet the demands of work and play.

So you see bacon is really more than a food fast food. It is equally good at all three meals. The recipes I am giving you today show its wide adaptability and show you how to combine it with other foods. The addition of bacon to any food not only adds flavor, but is one of the best means of extending meat flavor or of dressing up a meal in the event of unexpected company.

Bacon and Cabbage—Small head white cabbage, ½ lb. bacon (in one piece), ½ cup milk (evaporated if liked) to cup water, 1 heaping tbsp. flour, 1 tbsp. butter, pepper and salt. Cut cabbage in quarters, soak in slightly salted ice cold water for half an hour, then chop coarsely and cook 20 minutes in fresh boiling water.

Make a cream sauce of milk, flour and butter, seasoning to taste. Put a layer of drained cabbage in baking dish, cover with some of the sauce, add the bacon (previously boiled for 20 minutes, then cut and removed and top scored. Arrange remaining cabbage around bacon, pour over the remainder of the cream sauce and bake in medium or slow oven for half an hour or until bacon and cream are well browned. Serve with vinegar pickles and pimento cheese.

Bacon and Macaroni—One cup macaroni, one cup bacon, one cup stock, one-quarter cup drippings, some salt and pepper to taste. Break the macaroni into small pieces, put into slightly salted water and boil rapidly for five minutes, then drain well. Have some stock boiling in a sauce pan, put in the macaroni, and stew until tender, but not to pulp. Cut bacon into small dice, fry gently in pan, then add the boiled macaroni, bacon drippings, a good punch of nutmeg and salt and pepper to taste. Stir gently over the fire until the macaroni acquires a nice brown color, turn on to a hot dish and serve. Makes four servings.

Brochette of Mushrooms and Bacon—Peel fresh mushroom caps and discard the stems (use the peelings and stems for some other dish). Break the prepared caps, if large, in two or three pieces each; roll in melted butter and press on skewers alternately with very thin pieces of bacon an inch square. Broil about four minutes on each side or cook in a hot oven. Push from the skewers to slices of hot toast, spread over ten whole maître d'hôtel butter, and serve at once.

Macaroni Rice—Three-quarters cup dried macaroni broken up fine, one cup rice, one tablespoon butter, three cups boiling water, two hard cooked eggs, one cup bacon in a sauce pan, one tbsp. flour, three cups milk, salt and pepper to taste. Break the macaroni into small pieces, put into boiling water, add rice and cook until the rice begins to soften.

Add onion, tomatoes, seasoning and chili and cook for ten minutes, stirring frequently. Add the water, cover and cook slowly until the rice is tender and liquid absorbed.

If necessary add more water to prevent rice from burning. When done garnish with eggs cut in quarters.

Ragout of Bacon and String Beans—One cup diced bacon, three onions, six small potatoes, one quart string beans, salt and pepper. Cook diced bacon in sauce pan, add sliced onions and string beans and cook five minutes. Add one quart boiling water and cook until beans are half done, then add potatoes cut in halves. When potatoes and beans are done, serve in a deep dish with gravy.

Yours for more bacon,

Martha Lee

A clever woman invented this

A "Savory Sandwich Spread" she calls it—the cooking expert who invented this new recipe. It is a clever blending of many different flavors into one appetizing whole!... And it's so much more delicious—and less expensive—because she has used Standard Sweetened Condensed Milk in place of the made-up mayonnaise such spreads usually call for. Here's the recipe:

Savory Sandwich Spread

½ cup Standard Sweetened Condensed Milk
2 tablespoons vinegar
4 tablespoons chopped pimento pepper
½ cup finely chopped celery
½ teaspoon mustard
½ teaspoon salt
½ cup chopped green pepper
1 tablespoon scraped onion
2 cups chopped boiled ham

Into the condensed milk beat the vinegar, then the mustard and salt. Add the other ingredients and use as filling for sandwiches on rye or wheat bread.

You really ought to keep Standard Sweetened Condensed Milk always on hand for your cooking. Whenever a recipe calls for both milk and sugar, Standard Milk is a better milk to use. It is two ingredients in one—a blend of pure, fresh, full-cream country milk and finest sugar. Super-rich—because most of the water has been taken out. Super-smooth—because the sugar is so perfectly blended in. And super-economical—super-convenient—because it keeps fresh for days after the can is opened—even without ice!

Get Standard Sweetened Condensed Milk today. Use it for deserts, hot breads, salad dressings, candies, ice cream, etc. . . . And be sure you try it in coffee! You'll love the flavor and richness it gives. Standard Sweetened Condensed Milk creams and sugars to perfection, at one-half the cost of separate cream and sugar!

LIFE OF THOMAS A. EDISON

(Authorized by Mr. Edison)

Text by Arthur J. Palmer
Drawings by Frank Kuchenmeister

The first practical demonstration of electric arc-lighting was made in 1838 by the celebrated inventor, Faraday, who had created the dynamo. During that year he projected over the Straits of Dover an intense voltaic arc from the beacons of South Foreland and Dungeness, England.

Edison reasoned that the arc-light was not the ideal illuminant. In September, 1877, he turned his thoughts actively toward electrical incandescence. One of his first experiments was to determine current consumption by bringing to incandescence a strip of carbonized paper.

These experiments were interrupted by the excitement over the phonograph. Stimulated by a trip to Ansonia, Connecticut, to view experiments in arc-lighting, Edison renewed his attack in 1878. A novel memorial of his visit is an inscription scratched in a goblet which he used.

In Ansonia, Edison was the guest of William Wallace, maker of the Wallace-Farmer dynamo and arc lamps. Edison obtained a dynamo and set of lamps to light his laboratory at Menlo Park. As he left his host, Edison said good-naturedly, "Wallace, I believe I can beat you making electric light."

I USED to fancy when I left the schoolhouse long ago (dear little schoolhouse, old and gray, where memory loves to go) that I had left, along with it, my teachers, one and all, that I was through for all my days with lessons, great or small. But I am finding, year by year, that I have teachers still; they teach me much I need to know, they guide my wayward will. That friend who smiles when things go wrong, who does not fear defeat, he teaches me how I may make life always bright and sweet. Those patient hands that gladly toil, yet ask for no reward, they teach love always will repay, though tasks be long and hard.

Habits Necessary to Success

By Chas. A. L. Reed, M. D., Former President of the American Medical Association.

YOUR health character, like your character in general, in its relation to your success, depends upon your answer to a question and intelligent exercise of certain very definite habits of work, play, rest and exercise. The acquiring of these habits in turn depends largely upon your power of decision and action. All of them have a direct bearing upon your efficiency, and efficiency spells success.

Among the most important of assets to acquire early in life are those of work, play, rest and exercise. Each of these items has its important place in daily life. Too many people nowadays tend to store up their need of exercise, rest and play for the one month in the year when they get a vacation, and to fill the whole of the rest of the year up with work. This habit is playing fast and loose with our natural mental health. On the other hand, the man who does nothing but play inevitably finds himself sooner or later without any vital interests to occupy him. In mental exercise as in physical, consistent moderation is essential.

It is of the highest importance that you early acquire the habit of arriving at decisions. Make clear cut, practical decisions. One of the most visible signs of the truly great mind is the genius which it possesses for simplifying the complicated. Most of our best decisions are so simple and so clear that we need never explain them to ourselves again, nor even need to remember them, because there is no danger of their being forgotten. Once a decision is made, never question the steps by which it was arrived at. Nearly every complicated problem can be resolved into a series of simple propositions which require simple answers.

But it would be worthless to get the habit of arriving at decisions if you never carried them into effect. The most tragic people in the world are those who make decisions and then never get started. It is for this reason that after making a decision waste no time mobilizing extra energy, but act on it at once. A small boy who has taken the plunge thoroughly enjoys his swim, but if he stands on the bank long enough the dive may become an obsession, an unsurpassable obstacle. Waiting does not warm the water. Once in, he regrets the time he spent on the bank. There is only one justifiable delay, that which is necessary to resolve a difficult problem into its simple components. But that once done—get to it!

ON "THE INS AND OUTS OF LOVE"

When one loves, one
Asks so LITTLE and
So MUCH, Just to
Be TOGETHER in some
Quiet, sheltered spot
And TALK. Or
Be SILENT together.
But when a GIRL does
NOT LOVE she is always
Restless. And Seeks the MAN
See she wants gay
CROWDS, excitement, and
Other THINGS
For which he must PAY.

MARRIED PEOPLE are supposed to be DIFFERENT, but they often AIN'T the same.
When their hearts are EMPTY they, too, seek DIVERSION.
For they want that VACUUM filled.
But MARRIED PEOPLE who Still LOVE TENDERLY
Can, and do often,
Stay QUIETLY at HOME.
They do not seek
HAPPINESS outside, for
It blooms NATURALLY
In their own HEARTS.

A Story of Sylvia Bryant, Stenographer, Among the Money Crowd

Joyce Ackerman, society woman and wife of Vance Ackerman, rich broker, appeals to a mutual friend, Alexander Ladd, successful lawyer, to help her in her battle with Margot Liggett, who has won her husband's affections. Ladd persuades Mrs. Ackerman to install Sylvia Bryant, his stenographer, in her home as her social secretary. Ackerman admires Sylvia's beauty and charm, and Stuart Gifford, his cousin, falls in love with her. He makes light of marriage and she refuses to let him kiss her. Mrs. Ackerman confesses to Sylvia that she hoped her presence would aid in keeping her husband away from Margot. Sylvia overhears Margot's divorced husband threaten to kill Ackerman who defies him and says he is going out with Margot that very night. To avert a tragedy Sylvia begs him to take her to dinner. She tells Mrs. Ackerman what she is doing. Ackerman takes her to a revue.

Afterward Ackerman is stabbed to death. Sylvia flees and appeals to Gifford for help.

Ladd tells Sylvia she is in a dangerous position and he will devote himself to the task of getting her out of it. Intimates that he cares for her.

He gives her back her old job in his office with increased pay and has a row with his conservative law partners.

Sylvia gets warning from an old friend that she may be suspected as Ackerman's slayer.

Ladd corners Jack Liggett and offers him a chance to escape in return for a complete confession of guilt.

CHAPTER 43.

NOT entirely did Sylvia succeed in putting Alexander Ladd out of her mind. He persisted like a legend, an indestructible impression of strength. She met through business, in the course of weeks that stretched into months, hundreds of men of all ages and condition. There was none like him. In brain, in generosity, in strength he remained unmatched. There had been times when, wondering how he was, she had been on the point of telephoning him.

But she had never quite dared.

Stuart Gifford, who had been called out of town for a time on business, was a frequent dropping most of her spare time. Once in a while she saw Jimmie Devlin, the dapper Broros bank clerk, but it was Gifford who interested her.

He was gradually, she realized without happiness, taking possession of all her interest in men. She discovered that while she could live satisfactorily without him, it was much pleasanter to have him attending her. Even when he was in town, as he frequently—usually—was.

"We've settled down into a state of siege, Sylvia," he told her. "I throw myself at you time and again like a battering ram, but I never get anywhere. It's wearing me out, but I can't—I won't—quit. I've set my mind and my heart on you, and it's not in my nature to let everything end in frustration."

It was, of course, in her power to break off their association, but she never brought herself to that point. "If you feel like you're wasting your time you'd better quit it," she said to pointed out that he had tried to quit it—quit her—time and again. Sometimes he had gone as much as a week without calling her up, only to succumb with a rush of feeling and stand palpitating at the telephone while he asked for a date.

"If anybody had told me a year ago I could have been this crazy about a girl who won't even let me kiss her, I'd have said they were insane," he complained.

"You don't have to come around me," she reminded him.

He met with chilling silence.

"You little devil, you!" he would cry. "When you do fall it'll be with a crash."

"When I fall it'll be because I'm in love," she stated. "And there won't be any doubt about it."

She was, he charged, leading him on, playing with him. When she pointed out that he was leading himself on and that he was entirely too to strp, he did not have a satisfactory answer

"Why can't we be just friends?" she asked. "Here—I like you better than anybody I know, and—"

"Because there is no such thing as plain friendship between a man and a woman," he declared bitterly. I mean when one or the other loves but even if you don't love me—what does it matter? I have enough for two. You're really in love with me, Sylvia, but you don't know it. It's all there in your subconscious self, but you keep fighting it down."

She admitted the possibility. But if that is true time will prove it."

"You're Hard--You're Cruel," He Protested

"Do I annoy you as much as that?"

She was not beyond a brief compunction. "You don't annoy me—as long as you stop coming back."

"Does it please you, flatter you to have me dangling around this way?"

"Of course it does. I'm not particularly proud of it but there's a feminine something in me that is flattered. My vanity, probably."

"You're hard—you're cruel," he protested

"I'm not hard—I'll never be that. But, honestly I do think sometimes that there really is a streak of cruelty in me. If there weren't I wouldn't see you at all."

"Oh, yes you would, he insisted "I'd wait on your doorstep. I'd haunt you. I don't know why I love you like I do. It's a curse."

But he did not ask her to marry him. Sometimes, he did attempt to picture with words the happiness that would come to him if he could but hold her in his arms and possess herself of her. It was difficult to persist in such verbal ardor when confronted by her cool, unemotional attitude.

Something Bitter Boiled Up inside of Him

Time—what good will it do when we're both seventy or eighty? Here—now—is the only time that matters"

"I'm sorry. I don't see what we can do about it, Stuart, except wait."

Endlessly, it went on. Between acts at theatre, at dinner and at tea.

If the strain were him down it was almost equally severe for Sylvia. There were times when she was perilously close to adoring him. Times when he was all good spirits and laughter and when they teased and played, almost like children. If he could have stayed like that she might have loved him.

But he always spoiled it. Something bitter boiled up in him, once he sobbed her and brutally crushed her lips with kisses. Only when he swore, after she had kept him away for a week, never to repeat the offense did she consent to see him again.

At last, when the flesh could endure it no longer, he played his trump.

"It's no use, Sylvia," he declared, "I can't stand this any longer. I've simply got to and all this. Marry me, dear. Whenever you say—today, tomorrow—this week. You've become the most important—the only—thing in my life. We'll go to Europe for our honeymoon—you can have a house, servants, a car—anything—"

He paused, breathlessly.

Mr. Irving Spiegelberg strode angrily up and down the empty stage of the theatre pulling at his hair.

"Well, you promised to give this kid a try, and you'll have to make some pretense of it at least." Dan Scarlett, in his shirt sleeves, sat on the edge of the stage swinging his feet in the orchestra pit. "And when I say she has a swell voice I don't mean maybe," he added.

Mr. Spiegelberg growled like an enraged lion.

"Gott, Dan Scarlett, you got a head dot must be made from toy pudding blocks. Ven I say I don't vant voices. I mean voices don't mean nodding to me, sveet or odderwise. Voices—Gott—voices is cheaper in bermuda. I vill listen to dis kid, yopp. But do dem I got's for a woman dot ken fall!"

A grey face peered in from the wings.

"There's a girl outside says she has an engagement with Mr. Spiegelberg McCloskey's the name."

It was a girl who called back. "Send her along."

Spiegelberg continued marching up and down, pulling out his hair, wringing his hands and uttering occasional unprintable growls.

And Becky came in from the wings, white with fear and excitement, and walk ng slowly, dreamily, as though treading on eggs shells.

Spiegelberg turned on her with the sad lenness of a hand grenade

"Vot a de medder" Are you died beek dere? Make it snaaky if you re coming."

Becky, startled out of her poise, made one rash attempt to hurry. The inevitable followed. Glue is glue, and one hundred and four pounds of weight are a strain. There was a crack, and Becky made her entrance head first and struck the stage floor resoundingly.

"Gott!" shrieked Mr Spiegelberg. "Gen you do dot ag'n?"

"Why, yes!" gasped Becky, pulling herself up with the conviction that all was at an inconvenient end.

"Fault! Gen you fall? I ask you are you a woman dot gen fall?"

"Looks that way," Scarlett volunteered frankly, while Becky nodded and stared bewilderment.

"Do dot ag'n."

Becky cast her eyes, took a deep breath and lunged forward.

"Vunce more," cried Spiegelberg hoarsely. "Vunce more let me hear you." You're hired."

"Hired!" gasped Becky. "Hired for—"

"I'll ask for favors, dummy. Gott! Vere dit you learn to fall?"

"Why, I—I don't know" Becky answered, a little hurt. A smile appeared on Spiegelberg's face. "I must have had a bad fall when I was a parrot.

"Ach! Dot's vot I vas vait for. You'll do. You'll do fine. Mr. Spiegelberg replied sympathetically. "You got a good shape, you go into de chorus, and I vill find out vot you can do. Vell I vant you for in de second act Bimbo. Step, step, and you down a vay. Gratitude, dot's vot I get."

And Walsh Spiegelberg turned to Dan Scarlett, who had rejoined him with amusement. "Well, Dan Scarlett mebbe you had de right idea. You brought me a big woman dis time."

And, grinning cheerfully, he walked off the stage.

So I won't be able to sing after all" Becky exclaimed in a worried tone. "Well, that beats everything."

"Never mind, kid, you're in the big show. You need come to rehearsals if you use a stool, you know and listen to your little Dan" Scarlett said. "Oh I'll be around. I'll come up to Dan Dix's office. I'll make you proud of me yet."

BABY NOW CLIPPED WITH MARINES FOR ALL TIME.

Naturally, Maurine was a little shy when she walked down the gangplank to meet Vivian Dancer-field, but she was soon her old self again, grateful as he tickled her there, while they were riding in the back, he put on her lips—just as he used to do years before at the parties and socials to amuse the ladies. But by the time they reached the Dangerfield home they had calmed down, and Maurine was in tears as she approached Helen, who—

Was like the slender willow, when
Some storm had stripped it bare of foliage. Her face,
Pale always, now was ghastly in its hue,
And on her mouth was that drawn look.

Helen explained that she wasn't feeling well and that she wanted Maurine to take the baby, saying—

... she is yours to keep,
To love and shelter, to protect and guide."

Then she pointed to her slumbering charge at her side.
And Vivian gently bore her, still asleep,
And laid the precious child on Maurine's breast.

And there we shall let it rest until tomorrow.

This is a review of "Maurine, by Warner Wing" (as the name is to-day) of which the first installment appeared in the Boston Evening American of Wednesday, September 14.

This is a short and snappy tale
About the South—and it's not bad.
Marshingal, tho' thrifty with his bale,
Was quite an entertaining lad.

With gestures eloquent and grand—
He did have spending ways, you see—
Caressed the girl with his free hand—
"Will you see this show with me?"

Kind friends, do not be deceived.

The reason for his generous ways—
A covert glance; he felt relieved:
The show was called "The Woman Pays."

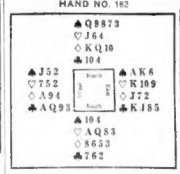
The World's Greatest Authority

HAND NO. 162



South is the dealer. What is the proper bidding and play?

In the next issue Mr. Whitehead will explain the salient points in the bidding and play of the above hand. Fill out your own chart and compare it with his method.

These hands must not be bid or played "Double Dummy," i.e., as though all four hands were exposed.

Yesterday's Hand as Played by Mr. Whitehead

Salient Points of the Bidding

The absence of Clubs from West's hand and his bidding of four Hearts warrant his delayed assist after his partner's rebid.

Salient Points of the Play

Trick 2. At a cross-ruff, East can take but nine tricks. He therefore plans the difficult task of establishing the Club suit, notwithstanding the fact that South, lying over him, has the suit originally. As the first step of this plan, Declarer leads Trick 2 in his own hand to load a Club.

Trick 3. Assuming South to hold the Ace and Queen of Clubs, East leads the Jack to shift out the latter should North hold it, pro ceed to force it up with the King on the other hand.

Trick 4. If South has both the ten and eight of Clubs, Declarer cannot make his contract, as in that case the long length will not be sufficient for the establishment of the Club and the removal of the two adverse trumps. But if South holds the ten of Clubs and North the eight, the Clubs can be established even though the adverse trumps lie in one hand. But to effect this result, Declarer can afford to use but one of his three remaining trumps in ruffing, since two of them will be needed for the removal of the adversaries trumps in case both of them are in one hand. Declarer therefore at this trick instead of ruffing another Diamond must put himself in with a trump.

Trick 7. The two adverse trumps falling on Trick 6, another lead is not necessary. Declarer therefore leads the nine of Clubs and, finding the eight in North's hand, establishes the suit and makes game on the lead.

It will be noted that had Declarer reserved the ten of trumps in dummy for ruffing instead of leading it, one more trick could have been made, but this would have been a hazardous play since the contract could not then have been made had the adverse trumps been found in one hand.

Mr. Whitehead will answer questions concerning your Bridge problems. Write to him care of this paper, enclosing self-addressed stamped envelope.

FADS AND FASHIONS

Time for Vanity is the only time that is kept by the imitation wrist watches, which are really vanity cases. Of gold, silver or enamel, fashioned like a closed face watch, such a little case is a double compact, holding both rouge and powder, and is worn upon a ribbon wristband.

Sham Flowers of Skull form such realistic boutonnieres that it is difficult to decide whether the glossy petals are natural or cleverly contrived from sea shells. For Autumn sports wear, flowers of felt, kid, feathers, pearl or glass also promise to be extremely well liked.

Sparkling Slides on Suede is the latest style note in belts for the dressier two-piece frocks. Blue suede belts, with rhinestone slides, are ultra smart and impart distinction to semi-formal, simply styled dresses.

Falling Into Step with Fall footwear fashions requires that one select shoes of suede, colored leather, kid or patent—often a combination of two of these smart leathers. Patent kid, trimmed in narrow bandings of metallized leather, especially in opalescent effects, is ultra-smart for formal afternoon and informal evening wear. For formal evening use the very smartest slippers are of metallized lamé, that shades in with the color of the frock for which these slippers are chosen.

A WIFE'S MEDITATIONS

By HELEN ROWLAND

If you could secure an annulment of your marriage, on the grounds that you were not in a responsible or normal state of mind at the time most men would be carefree bachelors tomorrow.

Nature has her little way of spreading things around equally, by making the most fascinating men marry the most nondescript women, the best men marry the most worthless women, and the brainiest men marry the dumbbells.

The average man regards his wife as a "property man," who should be able to produce anything from his silk hat to a can opener, at a moment's notice, and is to blame for losing all the things he hides from himself.

To a man the charm and essence of a Summer romance are, not security but novelty, not surety but immunity, not continuity but elasticity.

There are four things which are not possible and cannot exist; an egg which is half good, a woman who is slightly married, a man who is almost honest, and a lover who is partly faithful.

To a woman the approval and admiration of men is sustenance and wine, but to a man the admiration of women is only a little "relish" and their approval is a foregone conclusion.

It is variety and uncertainty that make the weather or a woman interesting; there wouldn't be much kick in life if both of them were monotonously pleasant all the time.

Being married to a woman is about as thrilling to the average man as reading a daily chapter in a novel of which he knows the whole plot.

When a man goes about with a fatuous grin, declaring that "It's a pretty good old world!" it's a sign that he has either just gotten into a brand new love affair or just escaped from an old one.

To some men marriage is mostly a state of chronic, intermittent or acute irritation. Business, blondes and baseball are the counter-irritants.

PIMPLES AND BLACKHEADS ALL OVER FACE

Was ashamed to be seen—simple remedy brought quick improvement

Munden, Va., Aug. 5:—"Awhile ago I began to be troubled with enlarged pores and blackheads. Then pimples developed, and even boils. My skin was very sore and in a terrible condition. It was so disfigured and unsightly I was ashamed of it. I tried about everything to be had for pimples, but with no good results. I had heard Resinol Ointment and Soap so highly recommended for troubles like mine, I decided to try them. After one treatment there was a decided improvement, and the pimples began to fade away. I advise everybody with skin trouble to try Resinol." (Signed) Miss Hazel Beasley.

Famous Composers

By COZETTE DOUGLASS

His mother a concert singer, his father a violinist, a cousin to the beloved Mozart—is it any wonder that Carl von Weber won a place for himself in the musical world?

Carl von Weber's mother was the second wife of the Baron Franz Anton von Weber, a dissolute, thriftless nobleman whose first wife had died of a broken heart. It had been the Baron's dream to be the father of a child prodigy such as Mozart had been and when little Carl was born, on December 18, 1786, he determined that Carl should become a musician. When the child could hardly speak, his tiny fingers were placed on the pianoforte and he was taught to sing.

After relinquishing his position as kapellmeister to the Prince Bishop of Eutin, Franz Anton traveled from place to place giving dramatic performances with the children of his first marriage and little Carl. Hard as the life was on the delicate child, it familiarized him with the stage and gave him dramatic experience which laid the foundation for his future greatness.

Lacking education along both practical and musical lines, Carl's capacity for learning was so precocious that in spite of his disadvantages, he educated himself as a gentleman.

In his fourteenth year he composed his first opera, "Das Waldmädchen," which was produced in the Freiburg Theatre.

In 1801 Carl returned to Salzburg with his family, where he resumed his studies under Michael Haydn. In 1803 he went to Vienna to study under Abt Vogler. Through the instrumentality of his teacher, Carl was appointed conductor of the opera at Breslau. He remained there until 1806 and it was during this time that he accidentally drank a glass of nitric acid, mistaking it for wine, and thus ruined his beautiful voice.

In 1806 von Weber was appointed secretary to the Duke Ludwig brother of the King of Wurtemburg. A few years later he married Caroline Brandt.

Weber has been called the master of romantic opera, and one can but marvel at his force of character which enabled him to overcome the disadvantages of feeble health, a neglected education and the wild mistakes of his youth. As an example, the story is told that a year before his death he learned English with extraordinary rapidity and thoroughness in order to compose the opera "Oberon."

His three operas which have survived are "Der Freischutz," "Oberon" and "Euryanthe," and in spite of many defects they are still loved as are also his piano compositions, the most popular of which is the "Invitation to the Dance." He was an efficient director, a persuasive journalist and an enthusiast for the good music of others.

Weber died in London on June 5, 1826, shortly after the first performance of his opera "Oberon."

MEDBURY SAYS---

By JOHN P. MEDBURY

THE reason for most nuptials ending so abruptly is that the average bride and groom usually go on their honeymoon together.

THIS is silly. Two prize-fighters never train in the same camp.

MATCHES are made in Heaven, lighted on earth, and put out in Reno.

EVERY wedding is a union and a mother-in-law is the walking delegate.

CONNUBIAL vows are like dyspepsia tablets—very few people take them seriously.

THOUSANDS of brides only get married for the trip to Niagara Falls.

THE altar is the beginning of the great American detour.

THE aisles are passable, but dangerous.

IT'S a shame to think that husbands and wives have to take individual honeymoons, but a separation is all that's keeping a lot of couples together.

A MAN and woman fall in love and then some minister comes along and breaks up their romance.

THE preachers nowadays are tying too many slip-knots.

THE wedding ring is the loop hole in the marriage ceremony.

THE God of Love is becoming such a poor marksman that he's maiming thousands of innocent bystanders.

THERE ought to be a law making him call his shots.

ROMANCE is a disease and every pretty girl is a relapse.

ANY lawyer will tell you that one little kiss contains millions of alimony germs.

IT'S one of the few maladies that the doctors haven't been able to vaccinate against.

MARRIAGE is our greatest social problem, and as the trouble usually starts at the altar, it's surprising that the reformers haven't closed the churches.

Hotels, Resorts and Travel

SAVANNAH TRIP IS PLEASANT

Loaves of travel may not feel that they can go abroad every year, but short, inexpensive sea trips are offered on the Savannah Line ships. Three and one-half days of sea air between Boston and Savannah en route, with a combination of yacht, hotel and country club, are inducements. A day at sea starts with breakfast, but it is not necessary to get up. A push on the button and the steward presents a breakfast. Then a stroll on deck. It is not long to lunch time.

Then, a steamer chair and a good book or maybe a nap, and then dinner. After dinner, the sunset, and there is no more beautiful sight. Then, maybe, a game of bridge, or cribbage.

And this is part of the routine, nothing to do, but eat, sleep and take life easy.

This program is offered the traveler by the Savannah Line.

BOSTON'S BANK GENIUS IS IN BIG DEMAND

By FRANK H. MELOON,
Financial Editor.

Col. Daniel W. MacCormack, Boston man, who for five years has been director of internal revenue for Persia, is winning world-wide attention with his plan to make the land of the shah a leader in warring on the opium evil. Not since mighty Cyrus led his conquering hosts, the rapture of Cressus and the fall of great Babylon without a blow has Persia been as prosperous as under the MacCormack regime.

Boston's bank genius continues in world-wide demand. Col. MacCormack's success recalls that of Jeremiah Smith, Jr. Boston banker, famous for establishing Hungary's monetary system on a sound basis and sought by Poland as American financial adviser.

United Shoe under the second Winslow regime, as represented by President Sidney Winslow, Jr., of Brookline, starts off auspiciously by declaring an extra dividend of 20 per cent, in stock and $1 in cash, in addition to the regular quarterly dividend of 62½ cts. a share. Attention was exclusively called Aug. 5 in this column to the fact that the floating supply of Shoe had vanished suddenly and that future purchases would have to be made at rising prices.

President Walter S. Gifford of Edison, who was graduated from Harvard about 20 years ago, heads the world's largest public service corporations. His concern also was the largest public distributor of stock. That's American Telephone, very much in the limelight with its recent sterling advance. The first was laid to new radio inventions by which American Telephone was expected to benefit. Myself own 25 American Telephone stock and don't sell your New Haven rights" was the dual tip-off handed out by one of Boston biggest stock exchange houses yesterday.

Vice President R. E. Fox of the Exchange Trust Co., tells me that, at a meeting of the directors, directors the regular dividend of three per cent. quarterly, was declared on stockholders of record September 24, payable October 1, 1927.

There are many kinds of collec-tors, ranging from that of the life time fiend, whose only overflows are first editions to the enthusiasts who gather all sort of things, postage stamps. Henry Ford appears to have a unique fad in collecting historical relics. Wendell Phillips, poet, poetry, out Sudbury way, was the nucleus, and now he has Stone Gables Inc. built nearly a century ago, on the Chelsea turnpike. This historic edifice seems closely related to Mr. Nutting's, whereby our Colonial New England houses are preserved indefinitely.

Since enormous economic loses are sustained by traffic accidents, as pointed out in this column yesterday, "Safety Week" promises a proper topic for business and financial as well as other pages of the newspaper.

You will perhaps regard the sug-gestion as too exasperating that, in approaching grade crossings, you make a practice, if one side of the crossing is "blind," slightly slowing down your automobile and making sure no train is approaching. Yet this course would save many a life.

Another suggestion that will be timely this week is that towns devote attention to the surfacing of flat sidewalks. Many pedestrians find good "walking" on the sidewalks as on the highways. Then fewer would walk to their deaths in the highways.

Money spent efficiently is usually money well invested. The incoming Legislature will do well to instruct Registrar Goodwin is spending money efficiently, and help to save lives by investing more in his department through some new system of diverting fees and fines.

Power Being Centralized; Reserve Board's Mistake

By B. C. FORBES.

DETROIT, Sept. 15.—Centralization of power is one of America's dangers.

We see the trend—the rush—towards centralization in the field of government, the field of finance, the field of industry, in the publicity field, in the amusement field, in the professional field, everywhere.

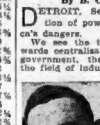
Combination and centralization are inevitable. Kept within reason, they make for progress. They save contributed to the upbuilding of America. But they so concentrate power in the hands of the thirteen



B. C. Forbes

States originally banded together and they have done so many times since in the realm of government.

Combination and centralization have also vitally contributed to America's unmatched power. No other nation has anywhere of such strength and magnitude as our United States Steel Corporation, our American Telephone and Telegraph Company, our General Motors Corporation, our Pennsylvania or New York Central Railroads—all the fruit of amalgamations and consolidations.

This same process of combination is today proceeding vigorously in the utility world, and well it will or will not be carried too far remains to be seen.

Not a few banking, and so too in certain other directions.

Although there has been less outcry since the war than there was before the war, the Federal Reserve Board is doing more gigantic occupies. They dictate the credit policies of one of colossal sizes. The individual feels so little, so helpless in the face of billion dollar machines.

Happily, the "anti-trust" sentiment has subsided very materially through the influence of decent, sane havior of most of our huge aggregations of capital. The present prospect is that Congress will not attempt to enact any drastic or even attempt to launch attacks upon holding companies or other very large enterprises in the realm of industry or electric power.

But the people of America still have within their breasts a burning desire for control of the men who manage their own affairs. They chafe against overlords, against overlordism in any form. Their voices in being, not as in various other lands, a subject, but a sovereign.

And something has happened—something unsought by the reaching grave possibilities—that runs directly counter to this basic trait of American character.

The directors of the Federal Reserve Bank of Chicago, comprising the ablest and most respected business and banking men in the city and territory, saw no occasion to reduce the bank's rediscount rate from 4 to 3½ per cent. just because most of the other reserve banks had recently done so. Under the law they duly communicated to the Federal Reserve Board in Washington.

Then an astounding thing happened

The Washington board hit the Chicago regional directors in the face, peremptorily overriding them. The rate must forthwith be lowered no matter how much Chicago's banking men or affairs, composing the directorate of the institutions, might object and protest.

This is the worst blunder Washington has committed in many moons.

And it was so unnecessary, so gratuitous, so shortsighted, so untimely.

The Federal Reserve Act most certainly will be thrown back into the Congressional crucible—with what consequences who can foretell! Special bitterness has been injected into the fight because of intimations from Chicago that the arbitrary, autocratic action taken by Washington was the outcome of the manipres, very, very secret—conferences or confabs held in New York and Washington recently, when the heads of official banks of England, France and Germany were entertained in turn by Governor Harrison Strong of the New York Federal Reserve Bank, whose attitude towards the public savors of that of the ultradignified European banker than that of our own bankers, especially those farther West than the Atlantic seaboards. Autocracy won't go on in this Commonwealth. It would require to raise the issue at this time and in this way. The chief culprit should be revealed.

He Looks the Part

It's a Real Smile, and Dempsey Believes as Do His Friends, That He Is on His Way Back to "the Top"

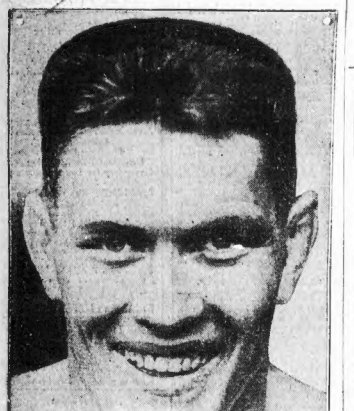
HE LOOKS "O. K."

The face of Jack Dempsey, trying to get back his championship, interests more Americans than the "face that launched a thousand ships" could even interest.

Dempsey is seen here in a moment of self-confidence and relaxation.

This does not look like the face of a man with his fighting career all BEHIND him.

But there is another face to consider in the approaching event. And here it is.



MR. GENE TUNNEY, CHAMPION.

This would be a wonderful country, if ten million young boys and men in it were as much interested in real knowledge, and in developing THEIR careers, as they are in the outcome of this approaching Dempsey-Tunney prize fight.

However, since they are more interested in this fight than in the fight of science against disease, or of men against the elements, it is well for them to notice a few encouraging details about a prize fight.

The things that count are SOBRIETY, self-control, which means conscientious training, quickness of thought, which has saved many from defeat.

Prize fights also emphasize the importance of reasonable self-confidence.

Tunney will enter the ring against Dempsey this time a fifty per cent. better man than he was before. For, at the other fight he only HOPED that he could beat Dempsey. Now he is ABSOLUTELY SURE OF IT, in his own mind. Dempsey having been beaten by Tunney, conspicuously and easily, will have the heavy handicap of DOUBT.

These are two interesting and powerful faces. Take your choice. And [illegible] your troubles, keep up your courage.

FAME'S FICKLENESS IS PROVERBIAL

By DR. FRANK CRANE

RICHES may be fickle, people say they are, but most of us would like to have them awhile and watch them flick.

But whatever may be true of riches, fame is surely fickle.

We all struggle for the spotlight and front-page publicity, but when we get it it doesn't last very long.

Those who are along in years can recall the many instances. We remember that "Doc" Cook was honored by the Danes and welcomed by the Americans and afterwards that Peary took his place for a few brief minutes.

Then there was Dewey. Nothing was too good for him for awhile, but when he gave his wife his Washington home that the people had presented to him sentiment turned right away and Dewey was cast into the discard.

Then there was Jack Binns, the famous wireless operator on the steamer Republic which was rammed off Nantucket Island, who stuck to his post until the Baltic responded and the passengers were all rescued.

How many people of today know who Jack Binns was?

A man by the name of Kissinger probably did more for his country than most any man. In 1900 he was a private in the army, but allowed himself to be inoculated with yellow fever to prove that that disease came from mosquito bites. He is now living in poverty and gets a pension of a meagre $100 a year from the government.

Once we sat up and took notice of Louis Bleriot who flew across the English Channel, the first man to perform that exploit. Where is Bleriot now? Where are the snows of yesteryear?

Then there was Captain Richmond P. Hobson, the hero of Santiago Harbor. Once we were all applauding him and the girls anxious to kiss him. He now lives in Pasadena and few know that he is alive.

General William Mitchell probably did as much toward winning the war in France as any American. He consecrated his efforts towards making the United States foremost in aviation. For his reward he has been ousted from the army because he disagreed with his superiors.

One time there was an ace by the name of Captain Eddie Rickenbacker who shot down more German flyers than any American pilot. For awhile he was a hero then he, too, dickered out.

And so we say of Amundsen, the first man to reach the South Pole and to fly a dirigible over the North Pole, and of Commander John Rodgers who was wrecked on his flying trip to Honolulu. George Young, who swam the Catalina Channel and Gertrude Ederle who swam the English Channel, that they might give a few pointers to Commander Byrd and Colonel Lindbergh as to the fickleness of fame.

BOSTON DAY BY DAY

BIG social function are affairs that Mr. Average Man never sees. Rarely does he hear of them, for although many are news, seldom are they topics of conversation.

Every Fall and Winter a large number of debutante parties is given. When the debutante has had her coming out party she is officially, legally and socially permitted to receive invitations.

* * *

The proud father often pays $20,000 for such a "coming out party at a large hotel.

College parties are less expensive although many students try hard. Inconsistency of the big college balls is the rule. Tickets are necessary when a girl is escorted, but for students with evening clothes the cellar stair or a back window often means admittance.

One Cambridge fraternity charges its members $6 per month for entertainment. It saves this money for two or three months and then has a $1,000 party. Many are the wild tales which result from some of these parties. And upon investigation a few are found to be truly reported.

* * *

News distributed to bankers and brokers is a most highly specialized calling. Many State Street banking offices have electrical printing machines. A single line printed by that machine may mean millions of dollars.

Rival financial papers go to extraordinary lengths to secure speed and accuracy. If one paper secures news 20 seconds in advance of its rivals it is a great victory. A simple statement as to the cotton crop may mean that millions of dollars change hands.

LISTEN, WORLD!

By ELSIE ROBINSON

THREE cheers for Alabama! Her Senate is considering a bill which will provide for the teaching of sexology in her public schools. Perhaps they won't pass it, but give her three cheers anyway, for having the courage and good sense to consider it.

Here we are in 1927. Our human race has been going on for millions of years and we pride ourselves considerably on our progress. But concerning the most vital fact of all life—the reproductive process—we are still as ignorant as hoptoads. Moreover, we insist that such ignorance is right and beautiful and must, by no means, be lifted.

Which wouldn't be so dangerous if we really were hoptoads, for hoptoad mamas and babies are simple creatures and survive a lot of grief. But we aren't hoptoads. We are exceedingly complicated, delicate organisms and sensitive minds and spirits and our stupid and nasty attitude toward sex is responsible for an appalling amount of suffering and loss. And the more civilized we become, the greater toll does sex ignorance take of our lives.

And, yet, the very suggestion that such a subject should be taught in our public schools, will awake a storm of protest.

"There is only one fit place to teach sex," they will cry, "and that is in the home."

There are about 57 answers to that argument—all on the reverse.

Sex can't be taught in our homes because 999 out of 1000 don't know the truth about sex. This writer recently found it necessary to compile a brief but accurate description of feminine physiology and functions.

On completion the article was shown to thirty-four men and women, all of whom had more than an average education, the majority married and parents of children. Not one of them knew the facts contained in that brief article.

But even this amazing ignorance isn't the worst part of the situation. Sex curiosity and sex excitement arise at a very early age and all the taboos in the world won't keep them stifled.

Children will wonder, and if their questions aren't answered by wise and friendly adults, they'll be answered in other ways, far less desirable. Those who rave against the idea of sex being taught in schools overlook the fact that sex has always been taught in schools.

But it has never been taught scientifically or inspirationally, by experts.

All honor to the State which will be the first to break through the vicious taboo which is responsible for such ignorance and defilement of the most sacred function of life.
